FLOOD TIES UP TRAINS

Break of Water Main Buried Tracks at Dorchester.

DEBRIS PILED 10 FEET HIGH

Thousands Unable to Reach City for Hours.

Thousands of men and women living along the line of the Shawmut branch of the New Haven Railroad were held up at their stations this morning by a complete blockade of the line, due to the bursting of an eighteen-inch water main at Dorchester, the flooding of the streets nearby, and a landslide that covered the tracks with a pile of debris twelve feet high.

The accident occurred early in the morning, but it was hours before the work of clearing the tracks had progressed at all, and in the meantime the trains that had been ready for the morning rush at the Mattapan terminal of the branch were literally marooned, while the army of suburbanites were compelled, after waiting in vain for the usual accommodations into Boston, to seek trolley cars.

RESORT TO TEAMS.

Many had to walk long distances for these cars, which were then so overcrowded that conditions were but slightly improved.

Teams of all descriptions were pressed into service to carry those of the belated ones who could afford it to the nearest trolley lines. Thousands of persons got into Boston an hour or more late, and many were unable to reach their offices at all on account of the sudden crush on street cars.

The break that caused all this inconvenience, besides doing great damage to property in Dorchester, occurred near the Cedar Grove bridge, which crosses the sunken tracks at Adams street. It came about 4 a. m. and was signalled by a deep rumbling and the sudden shooting into the air of a geyser that carried with it tons of earth and stones, and tore a hole twelve feet by nine in the street.

Into this hole the water rushed and from there it burrowed into the earth of the embankments, finally reaching the tracks, while another stream flooded the street for many blocks and filled cellars.

Landslide Onto Tracks.

An hour later there was another rumbling report, and Lawyer Charles Hall of No. 75 Hillsdale avenue, who had been awakened by the first report, telephoned the police and asked them to investigate. It was found that the second report came from the breaking of the embankment and a landslide of hundreds of tons of earth on to the tracks below.

Fortunately, the accident occurred before traffic had begun, and by the time the first train was ready to enter the terminal at Mattapan for Boston word had been sent ahead that the tracks were closed. A wrecking train and a crew of 150 men were rushed from Boston, but the tracks were impassable, and for hours thousands of people from Mattapan, Ashmont, Shawmut, Cedar Grove, Fields Corner and Central Avenue were compelled, after long waits at the stations, to seek other means of transit. To make matters worse, most of the cars used for suburban service are stored over night at Mattapan in order to accommodate them to the early rush in the morning, so that it was not until 9 o'clock that the trains could be backed from Boston as near the scene of the washout as possible, and relays be conveyed from the stations up to that point.

The break is thought to have been due to expansion of the water main, resulting from the great heat of the past few days. The iron main is an old one and was weakened by corrosion.

THE WEATHER.

Showers or probable thunderstorms late to-night and Tuesday morning, followed by fair. Light variable winds, becoming westerly.

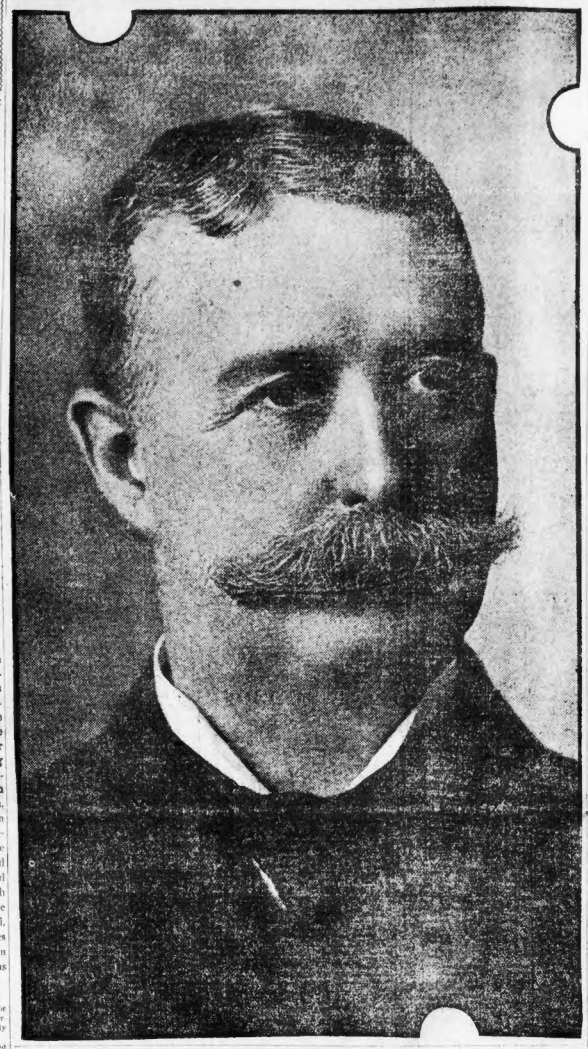
Fortune Lost in Realty Crash, Promoter Isaac L. Goff to Surrender to Sheriffs



POOR'S SAVINGS GO; TO ARREST GOFF

Providence Promoter of Defunct Realty Company Ready to Give Himself Up.

Special to the Boston American.

PROVIDENCE, July 22.—Everything is ready for the arrest of Colonel Isaac L. Goff, promoter of the failed Home Realty Company, on the writ secured by the Atlantic National Bank. Bail in the sum of $10,000 is at hand.

Deputy sheriffs were unable to secure admission to Colonel Goff's house on Saturday because it was claimed by his family that he was ill. Now he gives himself up to the authorities.

Despite the failure of the Home Realty Company, which may possibly mean the downfall of subsidiary companies and a large loss to poor investors, friends of Colonel Goff claim that he is being hounded and that when he has recovered that he will come forward and explain everything.

The writ for the arrest of Colonel Goff was secured by the bank, which alleges deceit as the result of an overdue note for $5,000.

"PERSECUTED," SAYS WILSON.

When it was learned that the writ was out and the sheriffs had been denied admittance to the house, the family sent for General Charles A. Wilson. General Wilson saw Colonel Goff. As a result of the visit, Frederick W. Shaw was secured to go bail for $10,000, and the proposition was accepted by Attorney John S. Murdock for the bank.

General Wilson declared that his friend was a much persecuted man. "When Colonel Goff's affairs are sifted to the bottom," said the general, "I firmly believe that he will be found to be a poor man. This is a very bad failure, because of the lack of assets visible, but it is not such an extraordinary thing, and I have heard malfunctions against Colonel Goff that I would hardly think anyone would dare to make. He is entitled to a suspension of judgment."

"ILL," SAY FAMILY.

A meeting of the creditors' committee of the Home Realty Company has been called for to-day. It is expected that one result of the meeting will be to petition the concern into bankruptcy.

In the meantime, it is claimed by the family that Colonel Goff has been so ill that he has been unable to talk to anyone about his financial affairs, that he was extremely weak and exhausted.

It is claimed for him that while admitting the debt to the Atlantic National he made no misstatement to President Metcalf so far as he knows.

In the meantime there is anxiety among the investors in the companies which may be involved in the failure of the Home Realty. The prospect that the Central Trust Company will be unable to resume payment within ninety days is the greatest source of worry to the small investors.

SMALL INVESTORS LOSE.

Hundreds of investors had their savings placed at 4½ per cent. interest. To these persons nothing is in sight but financial ruin.

There is doubt cast in some quarters on the value of the securities held by the Central Trust Company. These include many notes upon which money had been raised to carry on the operations of the Home Realty Company.

In this connection General Wilson says for Colonel Goff:

"The whole thing I consider is merely a raid for assets. Finding that there were few visible assets, someone has started all the commotion that has been made. Colonel Goff has been holding up a hard load for more than a year, and in my opinion should have given up long ago.

"TOO OPTIMISTIC."

"It is shameful that the minute a man makes a failure every one should turn and kick him. He has not been accorded just treatment at all, for he has not had a chance to be heard and has been in no condition of late to tend to business affairs.

100 LOST AS BIG SHIPS CRASH

Pacific Steamers in Midnight Collision off Shelter Cove—Columbia Is Sunk and 100 Aboard Ill-Fated Craft Are Drowned—Details of Disaster Are Lacking.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—News has just been received here that the steamers Columbia and San Pedro were in collision off Shelter Cove, Mendocino County, at midnight Saturday.

The Columbia was sunk, and 100 lives were lost.

The two steamers crashed into each other through mistaken signals as they were passing off Shelter Point. The San Pedro tore an immense hole in the side of the Columbia.

The two steamers drew apart and the Columbia sank in a few minutes. No time was given her passengers and crew to save themselves and the crew of the San Pedro could do little in the way of rescue.

A few survivors of the Columbia were picked up by the crew of the San ePdro. In the darkness, however, it was impossible for them to gather in more than a few. Nearly all on board went down with the vessel.

TWO BOSTON BOYS DROWN AT DUXBURY

Believe Son of Adams House Clerk One of Two Lost at Duxbury.

Special to the Boston American.

DUXBURY, July 22.—Walter Sampson and Charles Parrott, two Boston boys, eighteen years old, are believed to have been drowned in Two Rock channel in Duxbury Bay yesterday, and a searching party will drag the channel to-day in an effort to recover the bodies.

Young Sampson is the only son of Gaius Sampson, a clerk at the Adams House, and had just entered the employ of a wool firm on Kilby street. The other lad is said to have been a Dorchester High School boy. Both had been spending a two weeks' vacation in a little cottage called Bizenough on the shores of Duxbury Bay, near the clubhouse of the Duxbury Yacht club, and were to have returned to their city homes yesterday.

Before 6 o'clock they went out in a sharpy dory carrying a leg-o'-mutton sail and a jib, both unreefed. Neither boy knew anything about sailing a boat, and there was a wind blowing which would have taxed the skill of experienced sailors. They were seen at 6:30 by Captain George Wadsworth, janitor of the yacht club, who noticed that the boat was not ably handled, but thought little of it. At about 7:30 two lobster men, Clarence Smith and Sidney French, saw the overturned dory, with both sails fastly set, along the edge of Two Rock Channel across the bay.

A hastily organized party soon recovered the boat but no trace of the boys was found, although extended search was made throughout the night. The fathers of the boys were notified and they at once came here.

THOMAS L. HISGEN NOT A DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE

Special to the Boston American.

SPRINGFIELD, July 22.—Thomas L. Hisgen of this city is not seeking the Democratic nomination for Governor. He is standing out solely as a candidate for the nomination of the Independence League. It is not even sure that he would accept the Democratic nomination if it were offered him.

It is true that he had been asked to consider the proposition of taking the second place on the Democratic ticket with General Charles W. Bartlett and that he unhesitatingly declined to consider it.

It is also a fact that friends of Henry M. Whitney approached him some time ago with a similar proposition, and that he turned it down.

Mr. Hisgen says he would not accept second place on the Democratic ticket if for no other reason than that he believes E. Dorry Brown is entitled to it.

"Leaguer First and Last."

Mr. Hisgen insists that he is first and last an Independence Leaguer and a fighting candidate for the first place on that party's ticket this year.

"I have said that I am seeking the nomination of the Democratic party for Governor," says Mr. Hisgen. "I have been of the asked if I would be a candidate for that nomination, and the most I have said is that if the Democratic convention should nominate me I would like the nomination under consideration. But the only nomination I am seeking is that of the Independence League."

Mr. Hisgen has received assurance from many shippers that they agree with him, that it is about time that there should be a reciprocal demurrage law. It is a poor rule that will not work both ways on the question of railroad charges, they have told him, and they are with him on the stand he has taken, which is that, if shippers must pay charges for delaying to care for their consignments, the roads should be penalized for delays in transportation.

Reciprocal Demurrage.

Interest in this question is becoming stronger every day in this State, and the railroads have been hearing from many business men who are protesting against the present scheme of demurrage charges.

Mr. Hisgen's idea for reciprocal demurrage would work in this way. That while a railroad would be entitled as now to collect a dollar a day for such time as a freight car is held in the yard at the request of a shipper until it can be unloaded, that the shipper should also be entitled to collect a $1 a day from the railroad because of its failure to deliver a car of freight within a certain reasonable length

GIRL, AUTO VICTIM, DIES

NEW YORK, July 22.—Miss Nellie Madigan died to-day in Jamaica Hospital, where she was taken after being terribly burned, when an automobile, in which she and her fiancee, Dr. Edward J. Gallagher, were driving was struck by a fast train and Dr. Gallagher met a sudden and horrible death.

400 DIE IN MINE HORROR

LONDON, July 22.—A terrible mining horror has occurred at the Toyo Oka mines in Japan, according to a message to the Reuter Telegram Company.

The dispatch comes from Tokio and says over 400 miners have been killed by an explosion.

Guldensuppe Death Mystery Cleared by Story of Mrs. Nack

WOMAN LONG IN PRISON FOR FAMOUS MURDER GIVES TRAGIC ACCOUNT OF SLAYING.

BY BOSTON AMERICAN LEASED WIRE.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Mrs. Augusta Nack, convicted with Martin Thorn for the murder of William Guldensuppe, and who several days ago was released from prison, tells the following story of the murder:

By Mrs. Augusta Nack.

In May, 1896, I lost affection for my husband and lived with Guldensuppe. Every pay day Willie would come home and put his envelope on the table for me. He didn't once open the envelope, and what money he needed he got from me. Willie gave me his soul. I gave him mine. We were one. So how can anyone believe that I had any part in his murder?

I have paid the penalty for leaving my husband for another man, but what could I do when there was only misery and suffering in the life I led with Nack?

You remember that when the District Attorney, during my trial, asked me for a true statement of my relations with Guldensuppe. I told him I would tell the truth, so that I might have a clear conscience.

While I was with Guldensuppe I had a ballroom rented from the owner of the house. This ballroom was unoccupied, so I advertised for a roomer. A young man called early one morning and said he wanted to take the apartment. I invited him to see the room, but he waved his hand in protest and said he knew the house was all right and he paid me $2 in advance for the first week.

THEN THORN CAME.

It was then that Thorn came. I never before told of just how I met him. He came some hours after the young man. I do not remember that young man's name. I told Thorn that the place had been rented, and he was disappointed. He pleaded with me to get rid of the first comer and give him the apartment, but I would not do that. Thorn looked at me sharply, and I was suspicious of him at first, but then he seemed to be not interested in me.

The young man who had paid me the $2 did not return during the week, so I advertised again. Thorn again appeared, early in the morning, and I rented the apartment to him. He did not want to look at the place. That was on Monday.

On Friday he sent his trunk. He came to the house on Saturday. Thorn was in the house a couple of months, but I did not see him once during that time. He would leave the $2 weekly rent on the washstand every Monday, and when I came into clean up I would find it.

But for two weeks he failed to pay. Then one day he owed me. On one Saturday night I waited for him. I saw him come into the house, and I said, "Good evening." Thorn nodded, and went into his room. I guess he knew I was going to wait for him, so he came into my room very soon, saying: "Mrs. Nack, I didn't pay you, and I guess you afraid I will not."

"I LOVE YOU."

That was all he said then. He paid the money and stood looking at me. I invited him to sit down, but instead of doing so, he threw himself upon me, kissed me, although I tried to fight him off, and cried: "I love you! I love you!" He added: "If you don't love me I will kill you."

In answer I said: "I am thirty-six years old, I have false teeth, false hair and I have paint on my face that hides the wrinkles.

"If I took off my hair and removed the paint and teeth, you would not love me, so don't be a foolish boy."

Thorn was thirty-two years old then, but there was something so sad in his look that he seemed to have been a criminal for many years. I told him that and he got furious. He said he would give me a little time, but in a week he shouted: "Guldensuppe isn't your husband." That excited me, and I was ready to rush at him, when he changed his manner and said, in a rather soft voice: "If you go back to your husband I will not kill you."

I told Thorn that no power on earth could separate me from Guldensuppe, and I said: "You can kill me if you like, or you choose, but you can't kill my love for Willie."

One night Guldensuppe and I were eating Thorn knocked three times at the door. I went to it, but he had gone back to his room across the hall. Again the knocks came and I did the same thing.

When the third rap came I heard I went to Thorn's room and told him if he wanted to come to my apartment to come up. He didn't say anything but walked after me. Guldensuppe was eating and didn't make any disturbance at the time. He greeted Thorn, but Thorn did not say a word. Willie got up, slapped Thorn on the shoulder and told him if he didn't want to be sociable to get out.

Thorn got angry and struck a blow against Willie's chest. Guldensuppe wasn't afraid. He said to Thorn: "Young man, if you think I am afraid, just go ahead and shoot."

In a second after he had spoken Willie had Thorn by the wrist and both rolled all over the floor, Guldensuppe saying: "If you don't give me that gun I'll kill you." He battered Thorn's head on the floor and against the walls. Just as I cried out: "Oh, Willie, don't kill him,"

SHE PITIED THORN.

After Thorn came out of the hospital he met me on the street. It was snowing and it was cold. The man was badly dressed and was shivering. I pitied him then, because God drew and me to have mercy on people who did not keep on the right path. Thorn asked me for $25, saying he wanted to redeem his coat, which he had pawned to get the money. I felt sorry for Thorn. A week later the sorrow had not gone from me and when he saw me on the street and asked for $10 I gave it to him. Another week passed and I saw Thorn once more. He needed $20 to get instruments used by barbers. I gave him money again. A fourth time he met me and wanted $50. I handed him $5 and then after I got $45 out of my bank account for him.

The fifth demand for money was made in a strange way. Thorn sent a messenger boy to me with a note stating that a client of mine—I being a midwife—was ill and that I was needed at once. When I reached the street Thorn was there. He said: "Mrs. Nack, if you don't give me $50 right away I'll tell the police you have followed me all over the city and I'll have you arrested."

I refused to give the money.

THAT MISSING HEAD.

"You'll have to buy Guldensuppe," he said. "I want money from you at different times, and if you don't give me the money I'll get Guldensuppe's head." That is the strangest part of the story, for it seems to me Thorn became insane on this point—the point about the head, for nobody has ever discovered Willie's head, which Thorn had cut off the Woodside cottage.

"Willie and I decided to go to Long Island to live. I went to Woodside and engaged a little cottage for $15 a month. Thorn followed me in the car, on the ferry-boat and clear to Woodside. In some way he never explained, he got a key to the house and I think he must have slept there all night. He knew I would come back the next day with Willie, and I did so. Reaching Woodside, Willie entered the house, while I went into the yard. Soon I heard a shot, and I ran back to the cottage where I found Thorn facing up and down the floor like a caged wild beast. He couldn't remain still a second. He was smiling. He had taken off his shoes, and was in his night shirt sleeves. A revolver was in his hip pocket.

"HE IS DEAD."

As soon as I appeared he said: "Hello, did you hear the shot? Your sweetheart is dead. Go up stairs."

I dropped in the room. Thorn seemed to be sorry. He ran and brought me a glass of water, but I did not take it, telling him I never would take anything from a murderer. He became like a maniac and shrieked:

"Give me the $300 you drew from the bank and that I told you to keep for me." I had the money in my bosom, but God seemed to tell me not to give it to the man.

I said: Thorn on the veranda at 5 o'clock, that was when I returned and told him he would get the money to pay his railroad fare away from New York. He led me upstairs and showed me three bundles. They were wrapped in a rather gray paper, with shirts underneath. He said in effect:

"There, inside is a woman's leg, this bundle, his trunk and this other his chest."

Thorn made me help him carry the awful bundles in a one-horse hack to the New York at his command. Thorn got on the box and drove while I lay in a half faint in the rig.

Thorn told me, as I remember, that the world that was good had gone, and he would get it. Maybe he wanted me to suffer greater agony and cause me torture by thinking of the only man that I ever loved or could love, and whose body I was aiding the murderer to dispose of.

The above is the true story of my relations with Guldensuppe and Thorn. For Thorn I never had the slightest affection. For Guldensuppe I would have given my life.

Society Women Go Gambling Mad Over Bennett Club Card Table

Leaders of Exclusive set are members of coterie who indulge in high play with startling winnings and losses. Young Newport "buds" bend over their stakes with feverish zeal. Roulette wheels are running in villas of the wealthy.

MRS. HARRY LEHR.

MRS. STUYVESANT FISH.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—Newport is bridge whist mad. Narragansett Pier is bridge whist mad. But particularly is Newport whist mad. But particularly is Newport have the fascination of bridge seized hold of society. Here the pursuit of the game has become an obsession. It is followed with all the constancy and abandon of the master passion. Big sums of money are won and lost every day at the tables, and women, in most instances, are the most lavecterate of the gamblers.

The flushed face of the woman gambler can be seen daily in the handsome equipages that flash along Bellevue avenue. Her nervous, eager manner betrays her at the ordinary social function; she is waiting impatiently for the outsiders to depart in order that the select few may creep away to the boudoir of the hostess for a stolen hour at Bridge.

Roulette in Villas.

Indeed this is not the only passion of my lady, either. One form of gambling nourishes rather, and there is more than one splendid villa here now that conceals a dainty roulette wheel and a private faro layout for the delectation of the elect.

To such an extent has the passion for play gone, in fact, that some of the older heads here are seriously discussing the project of organizing an anti-gambling crusade in a quiet way. The effect of passionate play on the nerves of the young women of the younger set, as well as upon their pocketbooks, is creating alarm.

Stone villa is the home of the Beaufort Club, Newport's new gambling rendezvous for women.

Bear in mind how cold Newport has been in the past toward newcomers—how eternity society has set its face against the nouv and resolutely moved exclusively within its own circle, and then consider this: That the organizers of the Bungalow Club, the youngsters of the Chilmark Whist Club of last year, have decreed that any one who is a member of the cottage colony at Newport may, on payment of the annual fee of $25, become a member of this new institution.

In other words, social lines are to be absolutely broken down. All may come in. Anybody may belong. Do you see the point? The climbers, the crawlers, the butterflies—every one, no matter how new their money, or how it was made, may, upon taking a cottage at Newport and paying the annual fee of $25 become a member of this grand lodge of the bridge-whisters.

Young Society Women Losers.

When you consider that some of the leading members of this new club are Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Harry Lehr, Mrs. Charles Kelly and others of like fame, the astonishment that Mrs. Crawler and Mrs. Climber will derive from membership in this club are ineffaceable. Who would not, being socially ambitious, scramble for the opportunity of joining so delightful a club as this organization—the opportunity of meeting face to face the noted social leaders of America, of sitting at cards with them?

Here it is that the passion for bridge is seen at its height. On a recent afternoon there were eight tables going. There were flushed cheeks among them, flashing eyes, a few cynical faces, some hard determined ones—and the spirit of chance hovered over all.

Young Society Woman Loses.

Among the losses that afternoon were $30, $60 and $70 respectively, sustained by three young society women, who are said to lose with great frequency and always in big figures. Others at the tables lost smaller amounts, and a few won.

A certain two score of players were pointed out as being constant in their attendance. They drive out to the club early in the afternoon in automobile or landau, and generally for a few minutes on the terrace, and then impulsively move into the cool rooms, sometimes apartments, where the play is immediately started, and kept up until 6 o'clock, when they must need return to town for dinner. Thereupon, the hour being summed up, the dainty players produce equally dainty Russia leather check books bearing their autographs, slap checks for the amount of their losses, which are immediately signed by the cashier, and the money is handed over to the winners.

Won Enough to Buy Auto.

Among the stories they tell, sub rosa, at the Golf Club, is one of a young woman who has won enough during this season to buy a handsome automobile, and another of a young woman who has lost so much that she has threatened to cut off her allowance and refuse to stand responsible for any of her debts if she does not quit the game. There are other stories of matrimony who are deeply in debt to their fellow players, and of a couple of others who are participating in them solely by means of their winnings.

FOLLOWS HUSBAND AND DAUGHTER IN SUICIDE

SALEM WOMAN IS THIRD IN FAMILY TO TAKE LIFE BY OWN HAND.

SALEM, July 22.—Following her husband and daughter, who both committed suicide, Mrs. Susan J. Buxton, fifty-five years of age, of No. 45 Washington street, this city, took her own life late last night by turning on the gas in the sitting room of her home. She then calmly lay down on a lounge in the room and waited for the death which swiftly overtook her.

Mrs. Buxton and her daughter, Adeline, lived with a family of tenants at No. 45 Washington street. Yesterday afternoon the daughter and the family which occupied the house all went on a Sunday excursion, leaving Mrs. Buxton as the sole occupant of the home.

Returning home last evening, they were astonished to find all the doors and windows of the house closed and securely bolted. The front door and the sitting room door were finally broken in, and the body of Mrs. Buxton was found. Dr. Charles E. Hunt, who was summoned, said that Mrs. Buxton had died hours before, and the medical examiner was notified.

No note was left by Mrs. Buxton to indicate what led her to commit suicide. Mrs. Buxton was the widow of Dr. Charles A. Buxton, formerly a Salem dentist, who took his own life in Medfield in November, 1903, by swallowing carbolic acid. Her daughter, Miss Florence Buxton, twenty-five years of age, committed suicide on December 27th, 1904, with the same method. This also took place at Medfield.

Mrs. Buxton's daughter, Adeline, who survives her, is almost frantic with grief and says that she cannot imagine why her mother took her own life.

Mrs. Buxton was born in Danvers. She was the daughter of John and Adeline Reed Blake.

ENTERPRISE, TO AVOID MUTINIES, GOES ABROAD

RINGLEADERS' NAMES IN CADET TROUBLE WILL BE KEPT SECRET.

With the purpose of avoiding further strikes or mutinies the training ship Enterprise is to be sent abroad, starting Wednesday or Thursday. The nautical training school officials have abandoned the coast trip and the visit to the James town Exhibition.

"We are going to sail for Gibraltar right away, to avoid any more trouble while the cadets are in their home port," said one in authority on the Enterprise today.

The names of the ringleaders and others dismissed by the training school commandant will not be made public.

Names Kept a Secret.

Secretary F. Stanhope Hill of the Commission issued the following statement today. It is the last official statement that will be sent out before the Enterprise sails. It is as follows:

"On the recommendation for the feelings of the families, who are always the sufferers, the Board has decided not to give out the names and the number of the boys dismissed, but the parents have been notified to withdraw them from the school.

"There will be about an equal number of each dismissed and taken back.

"No punishment will be meted out to the cadets who return to the ship.

"The Enterprise will sail in the middle of this week for European ports, touching first at Gibraltar.

"The Court of Inquiry that listened to the charges of striking cadets, summed up the case by stating:

"It is the opinion of the court that more than half of the cadets were justified, and there is no evidence that the complaints presented to them made should have received the attention it deserved from the commanding officer."

LABOR RENEWS FIGHT AGAINST FRANKLIN UNION

Although action concerning the controversy over the expulsion of the Franklin Union, which, it was claimed by some local labor unions, is to be erected under conditions unfair to union, was postponed at the meeting of the Central Labor Union, another labor organization, District Assembly 30, Knights of Labor, raised its voice in protest against the present builders completing the work and recommended that the building be boycotted when completed unless union conditions prevail on the construction.

The Building Trades' Section of the C. L. U. at its special meeting held last week to list the building unfair and also voted to call upon the representative of organized labor on the board of trustees of the Franklin fund to resign.

Seventy-eight delegates were present at the Knights of Labor meeting, reporting from the various affiliated bodies. The members were bitter in their denunciation of the contractors, and several voiced their sentiments in strong terms.

One delegate in his denunciatory remarks declared that the Knights would have the institute for all those years, and if the trustees of the institute did not do as directed under conditions that make American living impossible the whole workmen engaged, we shall do without it in the future."

SHOWER GOOD WISHES UPON BOSTON ELK

Boston Elks are congratulating Past Exalted Ruler Daniel Kehan and his charming wife, for it has just been learned that they are quietly observing the sixth anniversary of their marriage in Philadelphia, where Mr. Kehan was a delegate from Boston Lodge, No. 10, B. The union claims a substantial victory. Inasmuch as it is said that an arbitration clause figures in the settlement, and the union men will be allowed to wear their buttons. It is believed that the difficulty will be settled to the satisfaction of the union.

Neither side claims any decisive advance, however. Just what the proposition of the Merchants' Committee was the union was has not been announced.

"It was voted to accept the proposal of the Merchants' Committee and declare the strike off at all stables at the meeting of the union to-day. All the men are allowed to go to work at any stable where they can secure the union conditions from which they struck and are entitled to the button. That was the only explanation the executive board of the union would give out last night.

It was explained by the committee that the action included the R. S. Brine Transportation Company which the union struck in 1902.

There were only 110 men remaining on the strike roll, and only one deserter during the entire fifteen weeks of the battle.

It is now understood that the bosses are willing to pay the wages and grant the conditions originally requested by the union, and want many of their old hands back.

7 VICTIMS OF SUNDAY DROWNINGS

Seven drownings were recorded as a result of Sunday outings in different sections of New England, nearly every one of the victims were unable to swim, and though brave attempts at rescue were made, all were drowned.

There were two drownings at Taunton, when Manuel V. Perry, twenty-eight, lost his life in the Taunton river on the Raynham side. The second victim was Nicholas Nicoli, thirty, a Greek ice cream peddler, who was drowned in Mill River.

At Lake Quinsigamond, George Whalen, twenty-six, of No. 544 Main street, Worcester, who could not swim, went bathing. He walked over an embankment in ninety feet of water and sank before aid could reach him.

At Auburn, Me., Edward Milbery, of Lisbon, Mass., who had made his home there for three years, was drowned in Taylor Pond.

John T. Roberts of Fairhaven, twenty, who went to Wareham, N. Y., on a short time ago to work with a pulp wood gang, lost his life in Lake Charpicin while attempting to avoid doing work on the night shift.

At Manchester, N. H., Henry Mansoucie, son of Camille Mansoucie, was drowned in the Merrimac River.

John Belegria, 20, seized with cramps, was overcome while bathing with companions in the Upper Cocheco river, near Hornes' mill.

SINN FEINERS BATTLE WITH NATIONALISTS

DUBLIN, July 22.—The Sinn Fein Society is preparing for a trial of strength against the Irish Nationalist party in the pending byelection in the county election. The resignation of Edward Blake, Irish Nationalist, for the south division of Leeds and his retirement from the Irish party, will be the signal for a fight between the Nationalists challenge Sir Thomas Henry Grattan Esmonde's contest in North Wexford, which will be held on July 31. Thomas has declared himself flatly as a Sinn Feiner.

At a big Sinn Fein demonstration held by his constituency at Enniscorthy to-day, a letter from him was read denouncing parliamentary agitation as worthless.

"Ireland would never give home rule or any other concession for the asking. Ireland," the letter continued, "is a colony; she is not a sovereign nation, and should give up begging with bated breath and whimpering humbleness in a forced legislature for the restoration of her stolen liberties."

At a meeting to-day of the Executive Committee of the Irish League at Manor Hamilton, the centre of Charles J. Dolan's constituency, Mr. Dolan's action in joining the Sinn Fein Society was condemned and resolutions were adopted calling upon him to resign his seat in Parliament. The prospects of the Sinn Feiners carrying any constituency except North Wexford are remote.

PRINTERS APPEAL TO ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, July 22.—"Slave driver" and "bully" are among the epithets applied to Public Printer Stillings by employes of the government printing office.

Resolutions denouncing in vigorous terms Stillings's recent order ruling proof readers for overlooking errors were forwarded to-day to President Roosevelt and laid before the department of justice by Sir Columbia Typographical Union No. 101.

J. Morgan Kreiter, who offered the resolutions, said at the meeting:

"Stillings's cruelty and tyranny have resulted in the discharge of more than 200 women. One poor woman, whose living was taken away from her, virtually by his order, committed suicide. His whole course shows that he is opposed to unions and union men."

WOMAN LEAPS TO DEATH FROM BRIDGE

SPRINGFIELD, July 22.—Miss Anna B. Nicholson, aged twenty-six years, of No. 40 North Main street, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by leaping from the North End bridge into the Connecticut River. In the opinion of Dr. E. A. Bates, medical examiner, the act was done while the young woman was suffering from temporary mental derangement.

FIGHT COMING FOR COMMAND OF STEEL TRUST

NEW YORK, July 22.—There is a fight for the presidency of the Steel Trust.

Some of the directors think William Ellis Corey has lost his usefulness to the corporation by his matrimonial troubles, marriage to Mabelle Gilman and prolonged absences from his post of duty. They have decided to appoint President Alva C. Dinkey of the Carnegie Steel Company at the board meeting July 30.

President Corey proposes to stay where he is. He denied, on his arrival here from Europe, reports that he would be forced to resign, adding that he had heard nothing of Dinkey's selection as successor. Corey has a following, too, among the Trust directors.

Whether Corey or Dinkey will have a majority at the board meeting is as yet uncertain. If they know they will not tell which the directors are equally reticent.

It is certain, however, that rumors of dissatisfaction on the board with the Corey regime are well founded and that a strong effort will be made to displace him.

Corey and Dinkey conferred together at the latter's apartments at the Waldorf yesterday afternoon, but neither would say anything concerning the purpose or result of their conversation.

CATCH SIX IN AUTO TRAP.

At the Summer street auto trap in Hingham yesterday the automobile police succeeded in capturing four automobiles and two motor-cycles for overspeeding.

CARMEN SEEKS IRELAND HOME

LONDON, July 22.—The rumor has been revived that the Queen of Roumania, the charming and accomplished "Carmen Sylva," is negotiating for the acquisition of a country house in the west of Ireland. Inquiries have recently been made on Her Majesty's behalf in the picturesque district of Connemara.

It has been said, though with what foundation does not appear, that there is a possibility she may purchase the Duchess of Marlborough's estate from the Duchess of Manchester. This is not likely, for it would cost more than Queen Victoria would like to pay for it.

The queen consorts nowadays can vie with an American multimillionaire's daughter in the matter of entertaining money, and most of all, Roumania's queen.

Her beautiful Roumanian has never lost the profound impression made upon her gentle and imaginative temperament by a visit to Ireland some years ago; and she is known to have a strong wish to become into touch with the Irish peasants, and if so united, to write a romance of Irish life.

MAGILL DEFENCE TRAP LAID TO FREE CLIENTS

ACCUSED PAIR IN POISON MYSTERY HASTEN TO ANSWER CHARGES.

CLIFTON, Ill., July 22.—A trap has been laid by the defence in the Magill poison case. The lawyers who will defend Fred Magill, wife and daughter on their return to Clinton Wednesday have planned to make a sharp contest in the preliminary hearing before the Police Magistrate. They will insist that proof sufficient to warrant holding the prisoners be produced then, and in cease of failure by the State will demand the release for the accused persons.

Justice Donahue probably will receive the prisoners and give them a hearing. It is reported here that the magistrate will not hold the Magills unless the prosecution makes out a case.

Whether State's Attorney Miller will be able to meet the crisis is doubtful. He is waiting anxiously for the report of the Chicago experts who are examining the stomach of the dead wife of Fred Magill. If this report receives Clinton before Wednesday and is favorable to the prosecution, Mr. Miller believes the magistrate will not dare to release the Magills.

Hard Pressed for Basis.

If the report to that there is no definite evidence of poison in the stomach enough the public prosecutor will be hard pressed for a basis upon which to demand the retention of the prisoners.

To-day's advices from Sheriff Campbell to State's Attorney Miller are that he will Magill, expects to arrive here on Wednesday afternoon. The Sheriff reported that the Magills are anxious to come back and face the charges against them.

Miller was informed that the coveted "suicide letter" were in the Sheriff's custody. Gossip and speculation to-day centre about Margaret Magill, the daughter. What will her testimony be? Will she seek to aid her father and her new stepmother or will she say her own mother did not die a suicide's death?

The Santa Fe train leaving San Diego, Cal., to-day bore the Magills from that city. The party seemed to be on a pleasure jaunt. The only thing that lent mystery to the whole affair was the vigilant watch Sheriff Campbell kept on his prisoners and the heavy black veil worn by Mrs. Magill.

Hint at Hypnotic Power.

The strange influence that Magill seems to have on his daughter, Marguerite, and wife, has caused many persons to hint at hypnotism. The wife seems absolutely under his influence and his slightest wish is her law. The daughter is a puzzle to every one and only hypnotism, many say, could explain her strange actions in regard to the stand she has taken. Never has she grieved over the death of her mother.

If the opinion of Sheriff Campbell that Marguerite Magill has the Pet Magill letters.

200,000 SEEK BURIED TREASURE, REVERE BEACH HAS RECORD CROWD

Eight Year Old Boy Finds a Golden Prize, Other Youngsters Also Lucky.

The hunt for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN'S buried treasure in Wonderland and at Revere Beach yesterday drew the largest crowds to that resort in its history.

It was estimated by several men who are used to figuring up the crowds there, that fully 200,000 people crowded along the sandy beach and trooped into Wonderland Park.

Manager Higgins of Wonderland said that the attendance there was greater than on his previous banner day, the opening day of the Park a year ago. At that time the attendance was estimated at 50,000. He figured that between sixty and seventy-five thousand were there yesterday.

When Wonderland closed last evening $175 of the $200 in gold hidden there had been found and representatives of the AMERICAN had been notified of the fact.

James Ryan, of No. 6 B street, South Boston, a boy of sixteen, walked into the AMERICAN office at 10 o'clock to-day and reported the finding of another $5 gold piece. He got it in the sand at 8:30 o'clock last evening in front of the State bathhouse. It was No. 13 but young Ryan is not superstitious.

Four more $5 gold pieces have not yet been reported as found.

It is barely possible that in the sand, under benches or in some place about Wonderland this gold may be awaiting a finder.

Most Exciting So Far.

This hunt for the buried treasure, which yesterday consisted of not only the $200 in gold, but also $112.20 worth of tickets to the leading attractions of Wonderland, was the most exciting of any in this remarkable series of searches. Although at times the crowds at Wonderland were so dense that it was feared that some one might be trampled upon, not a single accident occurred.

The most fortunate person to visit Wonderland yesterday was a Jamaica Plain boy of sixteen. He is Herbert D. Kelley of No. 27 Lee street. Young Mr. Kelley is $50 richer to-day than he was before he went to Wonderland. He found the Girl with the Red Dollar Sign and she gave him the $50 in gold.

The next most successful money hunter in Wonderland was Miss Nellie E. Cahoon of Charlestown. She succeeded in identifying the young man with a straw hat and cane who carried a Red Dollar envelope containing $10 in gold. He gave it to Miss Cahoon.

Lucky Eight Year Old.

The youngest person to find one of the shining gold pieces was Charles Robinson, Jr., of Revere. He is eight years old. He found one of the Red Dollar envelopes containing a $5 gold piece.

Miss Pearle Provost of West Springfield, Mass., and her mother are stopping at Hotel Pleasanton on the Boulevard at Revere. Pearl is thirteen years old. She picked up one of the Red Dollar envelopes in the hotel and was delighted when she opened it to find a $5 gold piece.

"I was more fortunate than mother," said Pearl. "Mother saw the envelope, looked at it and walked on. I picked it up and looked inside of it. I'm going to keep it as a lucky piece."

Miss Nellie E. Cahoon, No. 11 Austin street, Charlestown, who received $10 from the young man with a straw hat and cane.

The following persons were the lucky finders of $5 gold pieces:

Arthur P. Lane, No. 3 Hancock street, Stoneham.

Timothy Kelleher, No. 29 Oak street, Boston.

Donalde Geneson, No. 32 Billerica street, Boston.

Russell Murray, No. 316 Walnut street, Everett.

Mrs. Mary C. Turner, No. 48 Highland avenue, Lynn.

Carl Lewis, No. 800½ Harrison avenue, Boston.

Irving A. Campbell, No. 27 Pearl street, Lynn.

Mrs. George F. Curtis, No. 477 Beach street, Revere.

Charles Robinson, Jr., No. 199 Walnut street, Revere.

Joseph F. McCarthy, No. 10 Palmer street, Cambridge.

Richard P. Catlin, No. 32 James street, Waldon.

Joseph F. Lane, No. 9 Kent street, Boston.

Owne J. Graham, No. 1,290 Elm street, Manchester, N. H.

Henry A. Shine, No. 35 Forte avenue, Roxbury.

Mrs. Vinie Goulet, No. 62 Dehon street, Revere.

Miss Isabel G. Savage, No. 3 Fairlee street, Somerville.

Mrs. Everett Pritchard, No. 125 Boylston street, Jamaica Plain.

Pearl E. Provost, No. 354 Main street, West Springfield, Mass.

Crean Jahnsen, No. 38 Cabot street, Roxbury.

George E. Smith, No. 47 Dover street, Boston.

William J. Unino, No. 11 Westley street, East Boston.

William J. Burke, No. 70 Berkeley street, Boston.

Dionadis Weiss, No. 28 Kneeland street, Boston.

James Ryan, No. 9 B street, South Boston.

The crowd began to gather at Revere Beach shortly after daylight and strung themselves along in front of the rolling surf almost from Beachmont to the Atlantic House on the Boulevard. A great deal of excitement was caused among the guests of the Atlantic House when it was learned a $5 gold piece had been found on the premises. This news soon spread along the entire length of the beach and within a few hours, thousands of persons were engaged in digging in the sands in search of the somewhat elusive gold coins.

By noon three or four of the envelopes containing gold pieces had been discovered. As the finds and their exact location were noised here and there the crowds rushed into Revere Beach from noon up till evening, the crowds on certain spots augmenting until the Beach, Wonderland and other attractions were crowded as they never had been before.

Red Dollar Sign Girl Caught by Clever Youth—Excitement in Hunt for Hidden Riches.

Immediately upon the opening of the gates at Wonderland at 1 o'clock there was a mad rush to get inside. The hunt for the gold pieces was kept up with unabating interest until the park was closed. Many of those who were not lucky enough to find gold pieces got seventy-five cent combination tickets to some of Wonderland's best attractions, and enjoyed them.

The Girl With the Red Dollar Sign, who has proven one of the most interesting characters of the buried treasure story running in the SUNDAY AMERICAN, was in Wonderland all afternoon. She is almost as furious as mad been the unsuccessful search as the girl. Every man who had on a straw hat and carried a cane was approached by men, women and children who were eager to get the $10 in gold. Some of the men, in order to escape the questions, left their canes in various booths and disguised look out their hats, hung them up in safe places and would then leave unrecognized.

The real young man, with the $10 red envelope, was caught by Miss Cahoon. He had been walking about the park for three quarters of an hour before he was located.

Half an hour after that two cartwheels were thrown from the circle within which the immense crowd which gathered about that attraction. There was a wild rush of the people in the crowd that no one was injured.

By a peculiar coincidence one of these envelopes fell almost at the feet of an employe of the BOSTON AMERICAN who was in the dense throng under the spot that circled rapidly in the air above him. He was not eligible as a gold hunter but that did not save him from being pretty severely jostled by others who were eager to get their hands on the precious envelope.

Red Dollar Girl Caught.

The Red Dollar Sign Girl re-entered the Park at 7:30. By this time the gold hunt had reached its climax of interest. But, strange as it may appear, the girl walked about for more than half an hour before she was located and found by Miss Ryan. For more than one person might approach her at apparently the same time but this did not happen. The first person to speak to her was a young Sidney who asked the question properly, was told that he had picked the right girl and he received the money.

The young woman went to the BOSTON AMERICAN'S booth, stood up and bowed to the throng who surged about the AMERICAN'S headquarters. She received enthusiastic cheers from those who looked for her but failed to find her. Young Sidney, who stood at the side of the girl, was also applauded heartily by the unsuccessful competitors. The Girl then went into the Crescent Gardens and enjoyed the performance.

The gold hunt will be at Paragon Park and Nantasket Beach next Sunday. On that day the AMERICAN will hide $200 in gold and nearly 400 tickets to the best attractions of Paragon Park.

ELKS' FINAL HONORS GIVEN O'SHEA TO-DAY

The funeral of John D. O'Shea, exalted ruler of the Lynn Lodge, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks and chairman of the Board of Grand Trustees, who died in Philadelphia last Tuesday night of apoplexy brought on by a terrific heat, was held to-day from the residence of his brother, Dr. Joseph O'Shea, Broad street, Lynn.

After the services at the house the body was removed to St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, Lynn, where high mass of requiem was sung by the Rev. Father Harrington.

A large number of Elks were present, including a committee of the Grand Lodge, officers of the various lodges in Boston and other Massachusetts cities and nearly 200 members of Lynn Lodge, No. 117.

FOREIGNERS IN PERIL FROM KOREAN REVOLT

SEOUL, July 22.—Defeated, deposed and denounced with curse, Yi-Hieung, late Emperor of Korea, is making more trouble for Japan than when he actually held the reins of power.

Despite every effort by Japanese authorities, the former Emperor has undoubtedly been in constant communication since his abdication with the anti-Japanese rioters, and is said practically to have directed the commotions which have continued intermittently for the past three days and promise to go on indefinitely unless the entire country is covered with the Mikado's troops.

Fresh Trouble Expected.

While the situation might be improved by Yi-Hieung's immediate deportation, the Japanese are probably unwilling, considering the weakness of the Korean garrisons, to precipitate the crisis which would certainly follow such a move.

With Japanese soldiers patrolling the streets and machine guns commanding the principal thoroughfares, a semblance of order exists just now. Fresh trouble is momentarily expected, however, and so inadequate is the force at General Hasegawa's command that the guard over the two arsenals have received orders to blow up the magazines in case of a determined attack.

Korean troops, in mutiny almost to a man, have plenty of ammunition, which the Japanese do not dare as yet to take from them.

Foreigners Are Warned.

The Japanese are particularly fearful of attack on the foreign consulates, and all are as heavily guarded as the garrison's weakness permits. General Hasegawa has warned foreigners to stay indoors, as he is unable to guarantee safety in the streets at present.

The new Emperor's first rescript is an order for the punishment of the Korean deputation which went to The Hague to complain to the powers of Japanese oppression in Korea.

Rumor has it that the present Emperor, a weakling, will not remain long on the throne, and that Prince Hiuewa Yee, the deposed Emperor's second son, has long been known for his pro-Japanese sentiments, will be his successor.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

WILL INVESTIGATE CANDIDATES.

Members of District Assembly No. 30, Knights of Labor, incorporated, are going to investigate the records of candidates for office next Fall. The members of the assembly feel that the increase given in the pay of city laborers from $2 to $2.25 a day is largely due to their work and influence. At the convention held yesterday in Clyde Hall, No. 1091 Washington street, resolutions were adopted which declared that the matter of increasing the pay of such city employes had been brought to the attention of eight consecutive mayors of Boston. A committee of the assembly is to call upon Mayor Fitzgerald this afternoon regarding the Old Home Week parade.

Thomas H. Canning, national secretary-treasurer, and P. J. McCarthy, secretary of the district, were elected delegates to the general assembly, to be held in Washington in November.

BELIEVE THEY WILL WIN.

Delegates to the convention of District Lodge, No. 19, International Machinists' Union, held at No. 724 Washington street, declared that they felt confident they would defeat the Metal Trades Association in the contest now being waged in Fitchburg and Providence.

It was said that in Fitchburg there were only 200 machinists out, and that all the others were working under the union conditions elsewhere. In Providence, it was reported, 250 machinists were out. The general opinion is that the disputes in Providence will be adjusted favorably to the men this week. The delegates declared their opposition to trades schools. Seventy dollars was voted for the striking machinists of Pope Valley, R. I.

DALEY IS RE-ELECTED.

The members of Cambridge Central Labor Union are congratulating themselves upon the re-election of P. D. Daley of the Carvings and Cab Drivers' Union, as president of their organization. Others elected are: Max Coleman of Cigarmakers' Union 97, vice-president; Max Mirk of Cambridge Typographical Union, financial secretary-treasurer; Clarence E. Ackerstrom of the Rubber Workers' Union, recording secretary; Joseph Landers of Cambridge Sewer Workers' Union, sergeant-at-arms; M. D. Collins of Cambridge City Men's Union, Harry W. Joel of Brawtenders and Bridgemen's Union and Felix Guyette of Cambridge Painters' Union, trustees; John M. McCarthy of Cambridge City Men's Union, Robert J. Lynch of the Coal Teamsters and Handlers' Union and Clarence Mahoney of Cambridge Typographical Union 441, auditors.

President Daley and M. D. Collins of the Cambridge City Men's Union and ex-president of the Cambridge C. L. U. were elected delegates to the annual convention of the State branch, A. F. of L., in Milford in October.

CONDITIONS ENCOURAGING.

Painters' District Council of Eastern Massachusetts is greatly encouraged by the reports from all districts regarding the increased wage scales which have been granted since the strike. Committees have been appointed to visit Brms in Newton, Medford and Revere, which have not yet signed the increased scale. The sign painters' trade conditions, wages and conditions of work are to be inquired into by a committee which has just been named.

SCHOOL BOARD CRITICISED.

Building Trades Council of Lynn, at its regular weekly meeting, criticised the Lynn School Board, alleging that repair work on the schoolhouses was being done by non-union labor. The question of appointing a committee to look after the interests of the affiliated unions in Lynn was agitated.

LABOR NOTES.

The Hat Trimmers' Union will have a special meeting in Wells Memorial Hall to-night to consider the question of wage possibilities.

William Thomas has been elected secretary of the Quincy C. L. U.

Brewery Workers' Unions 14 and 29 and Bottlers' and Drivers' Union 122, are going to participate in the C. L. U. parade in Lynn, Sept. 4, it having been a unanimous vote of the U. B. W. A. that the Lynn Central Labor Union be invited to-night to the Year and Mutual Benefit Union at a meeting in Wells Memorial building.

A reception was given G. F. Shea, international president of the Teamsters' Union at last night's meeting of the Sand, Tip Cart and Material Hauling Teamsters' No. 191, of which union he is a member.

You Never Can Be Beautiful Unless You Eat Properly

CHEEKS, lips, nose, eyes, ears and hair are built and renewed, day by day, of the food we eat. Consequently, when breakfasting, lunching and dining, a woman should never forget that in the choice of her food she is making or marring her beauty.

To look one's best it is all-important that the most suitable food be eaten. It must be digestible, nutritious, sufficient, and not excessive. It must be eaten slowly and masticated well.

If the hair is harsh, the eyes dim or sunken, the skin muddy, blotchy, very pale, or undesirably red, a woman should not go to the druggist, but should put herself through the following catechism:

Have I taken more than three-quarters of a pint of tea twice in a day?

Have I drunk it as hot as my mouth would bear?

Have I hurried through my meals.

Have I rushed from the table to dress or to work?

Did I sit down to breakfast immediately after a bath, or to dinner without resting after a day's fatigue?

Did I worry, while eating, over the servant's faults, or my husband's unpunctuality, or the children's naughtiness?

Care of Diet

When these things are done they put all but the most stable beauty to flight.

To remain beautiful you must give intelligent care to your diet, but you must not do a great many other things.

Among the essentials are open windows, exercise, but not too much of it; light bed clothing (barely sufficient to keep the body comfortably warm), warm day clothes, in Winter, cool ditto in Summer, easy-fitting dress at all times, good soap, soft water, cheerful spirits, and as much smiling from the heart as you can accomplish.

Some Good Food

Immediately after meals, sweet things are good, for they put an end to appetite. At odd times they are distinctly harmful. Iced and mineral waters, except occasionally and sparingly, are to be avoided.

Cheese, jams, rich meats like pork, duck, and goose, fatty fish like salmon and mackerel, shellfish, lobster, crab, are better left to people who do not care about their complexion. Oatmeal is an admirable food for hard workers, but scarcely a maker of delicate skin.

Cabbages of every kind, because they contain much sulphur and hard fibrous matter, should be quite avoided.

Cucumber, the hard-fleshed fruits such as plums, and the fatty coconut and Brazil nut are obviously indigestible, and all indigestible things are bad for beauty.

It is even doubtful if salads of any kind should be eaten, for we are not constructed to digest raw vegetables.

The foods that may be eaten are too many to enumerate. Fowl, game, mutton, lamb, sweetbreads, tender beef, grilled bacon, among the meats, oysters and most kinds of fish except salmon, mackerel and fresh herrings; cauliflower, tomatoes, cooked celery, turnips, spinach, artichokes, salsify, and nearly every species of fruit may be put on the menu.

Milk is probably a beauty food in itself. For a fresh, clear complexion, soft, smooth skin, and sufficient fat to fill the ugly hollows of the face, plenty of milk is the best prescription that could be given.

But milk must have all its cream and no water added to the distributor. It must not have been contaminated in any way, nor kept too long. It must not be boiled, for boiling destroys the purifying, antiscorbutic properties. And it must have no preservatives.

Mothers Ought to Teach Daughters

THOROUGHLY understand a baby's requirements; to treat the little accidents that occur at home; to look after sick folk, and to keep her head in emergencies.

To be natural and unaffected.

To read good books, and to read them thoroughly; to cultivate the art of listening; to write a good business letter, and be able to sustain a conversation on everyday topics.

That a stitch in time saves nine.

That personality is worth more than beauty or wealth; that a happy face is always equal to a pretty one; and that she needs both for head and heart, but must never be all one nor all the other.

To do her best, and leave the rest.

To cultivate a habit of prompt decision—It is very refreshing to meet a girl who can say at once whether she would like this or that—and to make up her mind what she is going to do, do it, and finish it.

Not to get into the habit of fault-finding.

To shop sensibly. She must learn not to buy a thing she doesn't want because it is cheap; to buy good clothes rather than pretty ones; to value quality before quantity; and to have the money for everything before she buys it.

To love home—and to make home lovely. To make and mend her own clothes and trim her own hats; to keep up the accomplishments she learnt at school and to take plenty of exercise.

To value time.

To understand housekeeping in the widest sense of the word; to plan a dinner menu, first and fancy dishes after; to understand and appreciate domestic economy, and to receive callers hospitably and gracefully.

To have an object in life.

To keep all appointments punctually; to get up early, take exercise, and rise; to keep a strict account of all her expenses, household and personal; and to keep her temper always under control.

To learn all she can about everything.

To be loyal to her friends and her family; to be always ready to help her brothers and sisters in their little troubles; and never to let a day pass without doing something to make somebody happy.

CUCUMBER PICKLES

HERE is a recipe for making pickles that are "Philippine" can refer you to. Make a brine of common salt and water which, if strong enough, will float an ordinary sized potato. Put the cucumbers in a small barrel or tub and weight down with a stone, or on a wooden cover or round board to keep the cucumbers from floating. Pour on the brine until it is two inches above the board. After being in the brine about four weeks, take them out to be pickled at any time you may wish.

To make pickles for the table: Use a two-gallon kettle (tin or otherwise), and fill half full of water. Put in the cucumbers, add a half teaspoon of powdered alum and half teaspoon of tumeric. The alum makes the cucumber crisp and brittle; the tumeric (the cost is worth can be procured at any drug store) gives them the yellow color. Let the water come to a slow boil or simmer for about forty-five minutes. The cucumbers will soon swell to their natural size and harden. If they are being boiled using the lot a day pan without doing kettle must now be removed from the stove and allowed to stand about six hours. At the expiration of this time the cucumbers will be removed and allowed to soak in cold water all night, as this freshens them and removes the alum taste. In the morning the pickles will be removed, and vinegar covering them for three hours will give the flavor desired.

VERY new and very smart is this new style of Jumper gown. The waist is caught in box pleats well above the belt line with a crush girdle of soft brown silk running beneath them. The upper part is heavily embroidered in brown silk, with bands of lace insertion let in. If the material is pongee, as in this case, the silk Cluny is the prettiest lace to use.

The skirt is very full and pleated, with a great deal of embroidery at the foot.

Third of Ten Commandments for Summer Girls, by Dorothy Dix

Read These Articles and Learn How to Be Popular and Enjoy Yourself on Your Vacation

BY DOROTHY DIX

THIS is the third commandment of the Summer girl:

Consider thy raiment, yet put not all thy trust in clothes, for, lo, the race is not always to the fortunate, nor the victory to the milliner's model.

I am one of those, daughter, who defy the power of clothes and who are forever hammering at girls with the fallacious old adage that beauty unadorned is adorned the most.

Whoever first said that was a purblind poet, who didn't know how the good effects he admired were obtained, or a light-hearted father who begrudged his daughters their lingerie shirtwaists, and the truth was not in them.

Beauty unadorned is not most adorned. The loveliest picture is enhanced by an appropriate frame, the finest jewel needs a proper setting, and the most beautiful woman is made still more beautiful by being artistically clothed.

A pretty girl needs pretty clothes, but for the homely girl glad raiment is an absolute, imperative necessity. Dress may not make her fair, but it constitutes nine-tenths of a woman.

Therefore consider well your clothes. It is not a vanity in a woman to want to present a pleasing appearance. It is her duty toward her fellow creature, and there is comfort in the thought that we can all steal a march on old Dame Nature and improve on the kind of a job that she turned us out, for no woman who knows how to dress and do her hair need be as ugly as she was made.

Inspect Yourself

Before you start to buy your Summer clothes sit down and pick yourself to pieces as thoroughly as you do your dearest friend, Mayme Brown. Decide what are your strong points and emphasize them by the color and cut of your gowns. Have courage enough to admit your defects so that you may conceal them.

Adapt your fashion to yourself rather than try to make yourself over according to the fashion, and never forget that the ultimate expression of taste in dress is suitability. Likewise that the unpardonable sin is slovenliness. If you can't afford to always wear fresh chiffons stick to clean percales. Dirty fluffy is a young girl is as disgusting as if you heard her use swear words.

There is a class of young girls, mostly college girls, who think it original and that it shows they are intellectual to affect to scorn the science of dress.

They are wedded to sticking back their hair and the wearing of plain shirt waists, short skirts and heavy walking shoes, and are as likely as not to go out of doors and come to dinner in this costume as not.

Be not deceived. There is no girl in the world is to be decorative, and when she fails to make beauty a vision in it frills and furbelows and has designed for herself in this curious game that we call life.

People—even plain, elderly men and women—like a girl doesn't think will care how she looks—won't want her around, and those plain, elderly people are the ones who own the charming Summer homes and give house parties and have yachts and automobiles and things.

Prettiest Ever

The reason of this is two fold. First, all of us like to look at pretty things, and a pretty young girl is a pretty frock is the prettiest thing in the world.

The other reason is that the hostesses like to have their affairs smart, and a dowdily dressed girl ruins the whole picture. She does not like to be seen out with them. Hence the high-browed maiden in the rational dress has to left to spend her Summer alone with Dusen and the Higher Thought, or if you want to have a good time you must dress to play.

But—Hurt this but so far that it will do well.

Don't think that I do not mislead yourself by thinking that clothes alone will make you a bowling success as a Summer girl. They will not.

All of the pretty girls sitting around the walls of ballrooms on Saratoga trunks full of fluffy frocks, waiting for a partner to waits them around or invite them for a whirl, and all of the pretty girls sitting in hotel gallery, while poor Cinderellas who had scarcely a muslin dress to their backs danced holes in their slippers and had every available man in sight tagging after them.

Clothes are a valuable adjunct to popularity, but they will not launch a boom for a girl all of themselves. She must have something besides. She must have intelligence, vivacity, adaptability, sympathy. In a word, that mysterious conglomeration of qualities that we call charm.

Take an Interest

Cultivate this, daughter. Begin by taking a warm human interest in those about you. Under this glow of kindliness the reserve of others thaws out like icicles in the sun.

Don't criticise. That is the prerogative of your elders. In a young girl it looks spiteful and catlish. Enter heartily into the plans that are made for your amusement and avoid comparisons as you would the plague.

If a woman gets up a hay ride for your amusement don't sit up and discourse upon the time that you drove with a coach and four through New England.

If some young man is spending his money and his leisure in taking you skiff sailing don't try to entertain him by telling what a fine time you had last Summer on somebody's yacht.

If a beer and sandwich supper is organized for your benefit bear in mind that it reminds you of the time when somebody gave a dinner and supper at Sherry's.

There isn't very much that a young girl can do to make return for the courtesies that other people show her, but one thing she can do and that is to look as if she enjoyed herself, and she is in honor bound to do it if it takes a back tooth. Also it is easy.

There's no incentive toward asking a girl a second time like seeing she enjoyed the first. Therefore if you would have attentions from men and women alike wear an expression of enthusiastically having a good time.

A Sinful Deceit

Also cultivate an interest in the people about you. And if you are not interested, affect an interest. And listen to what people say to you with some expression on your face.

Deceit in these two matters is a sin that inures to others' side because you are giving pleasure to others, while you are making a winning for yourself. No young woman with a blase air about her will look in her eye is ever going to be overwhelmed with invitations to parties, to visits or need the police to keep the men away from her.

Above all, daughter, remember that men are content with small things. Fish tempt. The luxury of making sharp speeches is the epicurite of the dowager.

Don't attempt it, especially with men. Men don't like girls who are sarcastic or who are humorous; therefore, if heaven has cursed you with a witty tongue, send your bright thoughts to the funny papers, but never utter them. At least, not until after you are married.

Observe, my daughter, that the greatest Summer catch is almost invariably gone to the frilliest bunch of muslin, and that there is no bait at which so many fish rise as a gentle, kindly, sweet, womanly demeanor, and

And a tip to the talent is sufficient.

HERE ARE THE FIRST TWO COMMANDMENTS

1st. When thou travelest be not as the provincials are, for they are like unto the swine who hog it all, and their name is an abomination and a hissing in all men's mouths.

2nd. Bear in mind that thou art not the only pebble on the beach, and that the Summer hotel is not run for thy exclusive behoof and benefit. So shall the sick and the halt and the sleepless arise and bless thy name.

Valuable Tips for Home Dressmakers

Wash Suits Popular

MAKE more wash suits and fewer shirtwaists. Unless the strict utility and a matter of necessary economy, the useful and comfortable white shirtwaist is no longer worn with the black skirt without end. Of course, this combination is worn a dozen times a day in hot weather, but it is no longer considered good style. Instead one should wear a cotton or linen shirtwaist suit, or, at least, a blouse of a harmonizing tone with the skirt.

Sleeping Car Apron

FOR a woman who is preparing for a Summer vacation that will involve a long railway journey, here is a valuable hint: Make a sleeping car apron of pretty but not too fine lawn, trimmed around the bottom, line the pockets with thin white rubber. In these a brush, comb, soap, wash cloth and other toilet articles may be readily packed and ready for use in the crowded dressing room of the sleeper. Thus one may avoid the annoyance often noticeable for other accessories that have to be taken from berth to lavatory.

Make Own Shirtwaists

THE girl who works has a double expense for clothes. She must appear decently, and even nicely, and at the same time she would like to appear decently, and even nicely, clad at home and when she goes out shopping. Therefore, she must have two sets of clothes, and to do this she must spend a goodly amount for a wardrobe, unless she is handy enough with the needle to make at least her own shirtwaists. A little practice will enable her to do real tailored work on her waists, and the less of other ornamentation she attempts the more genteel she will look.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

WASTEFUL SWEETHEART

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young fellow of seventeen. About two years ago I met a young lady my own age whom I took a great fancy to. She moved from the city shortly after I saw her no longer, though now and again we exchange a few post cards. The past cards six months ago grew to a letter once a week. Now I am quite sure I love this lady, and by her letters I think she does me. Lately her letters have been very boastful, proud, and she tells me she wants it in a hurry strain. I like this in her, but to show I have no temper, and stirred up by family troubles, I wrote her a very sharp letter. My friend has not answered since, and I think it will break again and exchange a few post cards. The post

CALIFORNIA NOW ON THE HIGH TIDE OF PROSPERITY

NEW PRODUCERS HAVE RUSHED INTO STATE SINCE EARTHQUAKE LADEN WITH CAPITAL.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 22.—"A cursory acquaintance with the fact shows that California is very prosperous. A good deal of new capital and a great many new producers have come into the State during the past years. It is safe to say that California has gained 125,000 population through immigration since our trouble a year ago last April. The growing interest shown by the Eastern and middle Western farmers in this State and the great possibilities for fine producers in that line are indications that the substantial gains made in all lines are being noted with interest by outside people. Newcomers are not attracted to California entirely without purpose or simply with a desire to enjoy the climate. The industrial advancement had been a tedious task and our new comers have not been eager so much to create opportunities as to take advantage of the opportunities offered them."

Vast Increase in Production.

So spoke Paul Shoupe, assistant passenger agent of the Southern Pacific, yesterday. Mr. Shoupe is making a study of general conditions in the State on which to make a report to President E. H. Harriman and Messrs. Stubbs and Kruttschnitt. Continuing, Mr. Shoupe said:

"Five or six years ago California was in a transition stage. In matter of fuel, it was undergoing the initial heavy expense of discarding coal and wood consuming engines for oil burners, but it is now enjoying fully the prosperity given to the oil producers. The increase in the production of oil since 1900 has been one of the principal factors in California's prosperity. The lumber industry is another that helped us. The lumber trade originally did not carry stocks from many different sources, and when the Pacific Coast became the most favorable center of supply for Iowa, Nebraska and Minnesota yards, then the Coast was apt to control the business of that yard. So long as our forests last and so long as they properly are conserved, they will be a source of increasing revenue to the State.

Wonderful Citrus Yields.

"The citrus fruit growers of the State during the past two years have been at the highest tide of prosperity in their history. Orchards have yielded $1,000 per acre, while orchards yielding $500 an acre either in the Northern or Southern districts have not been uncommon, whereas a few years ago many of them paid little more than expenses. The shipments to California of $100 per car on 31,000 cars of oranges and 6,000 cars of lemons, the average crop, is very considerable and provides some prosperity in itself.

"What is true of citrus fruit is also true of deciduous fruits, in which the prices are concerned. Five or six years ago the growers sold his product on something like sixty-cent basis, while this year he is getting four and a half cents per pound. This year also the fruit crop prospects is much better than we had in 1906 or 1905, the price is excellent, being around five and a half cents a pound. Our cured peaches generally average about 15,000 tons and likewise with apricots, though this year the apricot crop is very light. However, the growers will get twenty cents per pound for his dried apricots and ten cents for his dried peaches, which in the case of apricots is three times as much or more than in 1905, and very considerable more than for peaches a few years ago.

General Rise in Prices.

"The growth of fruit has shown the same advance in prices in the last five years, and the return per car for many varieties of fruit to the growers is three times as large this season as they were a few years ago.

"So it is all along the line almost without exception. The principal products of California have increased greatly in price during the past few years. Taking an average crop, like that of 1905, when the State produced 31,000 cars of oranges, 5,500 cars of lemons and 15,000 tons of cured apricots, 15,000 tons of cured peaches, 8,000 tons of raisins and 6,000 cars of green fruit, besides the thousands of cars of canned and two thousand cars of apples, it is very easy to figure that the increase in prices means to California's prosperity. Briefly, 'there is millions in it.'

Beets More Profitable.

"There has been a growth in the sugar beet industry, two factories having been constructed, and with a better understanding of the handling of the crop, the percentage of sugar has been largely increased and the beets, therefore, have been more profitable to the grower. Also, cement plants have greatly increased their output to supply the enormous demand for this product as a building material.

"The demand of the railroad company for ties and bridge timbers cannot be filled. The growth of the dairy industry has been very marked and been a prosperous one. Increase in the acreage of alfalfa. The small farmers particularly are coming to realize the importance of diversifying in connection with the growing of alfalfa as a factor in its profits.

"The area of irrigated land has perhaps been doubled in the past two years, and indeed it is only that the San Juan and Sacramento valleys are really putting their riches to account for turning water on them. The prices of wheat, barley and other grains have all been good. In fact, it is not generally known that California's grain crop, which has been supposed to be getting way to other industries, was worth over $20,000,000 in 1906 and the hay crop was worth as much more.

Dearth of Laborers.

"Developments of the electric power in the last five years has been marvelous and manufacturing industries have increased wonderfully.

"There is no need of dwelling on the opportunities of wage workers. Everyman knows what skilled workmen can command and the demand is unsatisfied throughout the State. There was never a better opportunity for the young man 'land hungry' to get a home in California than there is now. There is an undeveloped division of land by large holders and many properties are now under study and the use of water that have been heretofore inoperative has been undertaken for the purpose of irrigation. Everyfield here, because of her age, a plan was drawn up by which the pair were to go to South Dakota.

Gives Girl Fare West.

Last Friday, according to the story told by the girl to the Buffalo police, Penfield packed his trunk, into which he put some of her clothing, as well as his own, and left for Perry. He gave Dorothy a ticket to Chicago and $12 in cash to pay her expenses from Chicago to Perry.

The girl left Boston on Saturday night on the New York Central.

John W. Nichols will bring his grandchild home as soon as he can cover the distance from Boston to Buffalo and back again. He was advised to-day that the child had been persuaded to take such a step.

Penfield was last seen Friday in East Weymouth. He left the Nichols home Thursday, taking all his belongings.

Penfield Worked "for Health."

Saturday morning Dorothy went to the car barns at East Weymouth and asked for Penfield. In half an hour she returned home and said that Penfield was at the place and wanted her to come back. Shortly afterward she set out for Boston. She had $25 with her, but did not bring her clothes.

One of the street car employes who is the car barn when the girl came there, said that she had not seen Penfield since the night when she said he could not find him she threatened to take matters into her own hands. She is a cousin of her hand, which one of the men denies.

Penfield represented to the Nichols family that he had money, and he was in the habit of telling his fellow-employes that he was not long for work, but did so "for his health." He was constantly in the pool and it was generally supposed that the two were engaged.

PARAGON PARK BABY ELEPHANT SCORNS NAPKIN

Tiny Pachyderm Dines in Palm Garden and Rolls in Sand With Other Youngsters.

GREAT OUTDOOR SHOW

As usual the baby elephant at Paragon Park dined in the Palm Garden yesterday and will again to-day, accompanied by his keeper, Herr Kennedy. The elephant's menu consisted of bread, corn cakes, candy, pie and a pitcher of ice water. He scorned to use a napkin, but may be induced to try one later on as his education improves, for the elephant is now very, very young.

Following lunch the baby joined the children at the sand bunge. Disdaining to slide down the bumps he contented his baby self with rolling in the sand at the foot of the slope and getting himself untidy as any baby in the world.

To-day and to-morrow SUNDAY AMERICAN coupons are being accepted at Paragon Park, day and evening, for thirty-five cents worth of amusements besides the outdoor performances. The coupons admit at the gate, to Switzerland, to the Theatre Comique and to the Beauty Show.

The outdoor attractions are most spectacular, including high diving, fire diving, jumping the fiery gulf, ring shows, and the Hindoo marvel with an unpronounceable name. He swallows a sword, bites his fingers and gyrates upon a rope one hundred feet in the air like a monkey. He is the "Human Spider," said to be over eighty years of age. He knows nothing and cares nothing for the English language or civilization, but puts in all of his spare time practicing new stunts up and down his vertical rope. Daily parades, clowns and funny spectacles abound.

ELOPING HINGHAM MAID IN CUSTODY OF POLICE

SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD DOROTHY NICHOLS, SPEEDING WEST, HELD AT BUFFALO.

Because sixteen-year-old Dorothy Nichols of Hingham was unable to keep a secret she is now in the custody of the police of Buffalo, N. Y., her elopement plans frustrated, and word is being awaited there from her grandfather, John W. Nichols, in Hingham, as to what he wants done with the runaway. Had Dorothy not shared her secret with her soubrette in the train, she might now be speeding on her way to Perry, Ind., to join her sweetheart, Charles L. Penfield, formerly a street car motorman in Hingham. Her confident told the news to Dorothy's father and sisters, and the news satisfied the police of Buffalo, who promptly took Dorothy into their custody.

Meanwhile out in the West Penfield will wait a vain for the coming of the girl he expected to wed, because her grandfather will go to Buffalo to bring her back to her Hingham home. There to wait until she comes to a suitable age for matrimony.

Left Hingham Saturday.

Dorothy Nichols has lived with her grandfather since her parents died some years ago. Last night Mr. Nichols received the first news of the girl's flight and detention in Buffalo. She left her home at noon Saturday to go to Boston without giving her grandfather or any other Becky any hint of her intentions. Mr. Nichols will instruct the Buffalo authorities to hold her until he can come to bring her home.

Until last week when he left his position, Penfield, the love for whom Dorothy Nichols left her home, was employed on the Old Colony street railway at Hingham. He boarded at the Nichols house, and he and the young girl became fast friends. The intimacy was discouraged by her friends, as the man was forty-two years old.

Seeing that the laws of Massachusetts made it impossible for her to marry Penfield here, because of her age, a plan was drawn up by which the pair were to go to South Dakota.

WOLFFE OFF ON CHANNEL SWIM

DOVER, Eng., July 22.—Just a year after his previous unsuccessful attempt, Jules Wolffe, a Scotch amateur swimmer, started this morning in an effort to swim the English Channel. He entered the water at South Foreland and made a strong start. The sea was calm, but cold.

Wolffe's previous effort to swim the channel was made on July 18 last year. He got within seven miles of the French Coast when he injured his leg and was obliged to give up.

WRECK DEATHS 31 IN NUMBER

DETROIT, July 22.—The death list as a result of Saturday's collision near Salem in the wreck of an excursion and freight train, stands at thirty-one, but among the 100 injured in this city and Ionia, eight are reported to be in a serious condition and not out of danger. There are sixty-one injured people at their houses in Ionia, and forty-two were brought to the hospitals in this city for treatment. Of the long list of suffering persons at Ionia, but one, Mrs. M. Durling, whose husband and son were killed, is reported to be in a dangerous condition.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

SEEK 2 BOYS AS BOLD L ROBBERS

Having followed a plain trail of enamored maidens, depleted candy boxes and Turkish cigarette stubs through the South End for nearly a week, the inspectors entrusted with the task of running down the bold robbers who stole a strong box containing $4,200 from a wagon in Milk street, under the nose of its guard-ian, Edward Fenno, paymaster of the "L," have the police reason to give two youths the "third degree" in an endeavor to find out what they know about the whereabouts of the "L" cash.

They have the name of a witness who, they believe, will identify the suspects as those in the connection of those two lads with the robbery which startled the financial district a week ago, and think that, before the day is ended, the mystery will have been cleared up.

The sudden acquisition of apparently inexhaustible wealth by the youngsters, who spread their information around with a lavish hand in the South End first drew suspicion to them, and the theft of $4,200 in the children's court was a further incentive for the attention of the police.

'SOAP PEDLER' FLEECED MANY

Special to the Boston American.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, July 22.—Promising to give $35 worth of household furniture for $11, providing a "fee" of $5 was paid in advance, a "soap pedler" has succeeded in getting away with a lot of money from Attleboro housewives, according to the police and county officers, who to-day have received complaints and are searching for the "agent."

The man the police want to find, according to Deputy Sheriff E. C. Brown, gave a New York address on his visits here. Many a housewife, bewildered by the offering of something for nothing, gave the man five dollars apiece to "get in" on what they considered a "good thing." All are now mourning their loss, for the soap man has disappeared and no furniture has been forthcoming.

TWO BOYS DROWNED.

SHARON, Pa., July 22.—While bathing in the Shenango River, Willis Kenivan and Thomas Evans, eleven and twelve years old, were drowned.

MOLDERS REACH PHILADELPHIA

Word was received in Boston to-day that the delegates from New England to the national convention of the Iron Molders' Union of North America had reached Philadelphia, where the annual convention of the organization began to-day. The New England party went from New Haven, where on Saturday night last the annual convention of the New England conference closed. Before the New England convention any financial aid that may be necessary was pledged to the defence of Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone in their case in the prize fight and the telegraphers in their difficulties.

The following delegates were elected: President, Denis O'Keefe of New Britain, Ct.; vice-president, James Cahoon, Anderson of Lowell; secretary-treasurer, John S. Gale of Worcester; first business agent, Henry M. Donnelly of Providence; second business agent, Frank S. McGee of Worcester.

BOSTONIAN PRESIDENT.

CHICAGO, July 22.—The fifteenth annual convention of the International Plate Printers' Union will be held in Boston. James Foley of Boston president. Next year's convention will be held in New York.

REPORT SHOWS MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP BIG SUCCESS

BENEFITS TO PUBLIC ARE DEMONSTRATED BY ECONOMIST'S FINDINGS.

NEW YORK, July 22.—The operation of British street railways by municipalities and privately owned corporations respectively is considered in great detail in two reviews of expert reports on the subject made to the National Civic Federation Commission on Public Ownership.

The reviews were prepared by members of the Commission after an exhaustive investigation of the systems treated, and were made public to-day. They are based upon technical reports compiled by expert engineers who, with the reviewers, spent several months in the British cities where the several lines are operated. The reviews are by William J. Clark of New York, as an opponent of municipalization, and Professor Frank Parsons of Boston, as an advocate of public ownership and operation.

Mr. Clark is general manager of the foreign department of the General Electric Company. Professor Parsons has been a student of municipal ownership for years and is the author of several works on that subject, among them "The Railways, the Trusts and the People."

Professor Parsons expresses the opinion that municipal ownership of British tramway systems has been successful from every point of view. He sets forth that the municipalities were the first to show a progressive spirit in changing from horse cars to electric systems; that their lines have been well managed and the service improved, and that fares have been lowered in spite of the fact that the hours of labor of employes were shortened, while in many instances wages were increased.

The comparisons he makes are between British publicly-owned and privately-owned companies, and in this connection he declares that the British plants must be measured by British and not by American standards. The conditions and habits of the people are different, he says, and these differences must be taken into account in the judgment of the management of tramways.

Professor Parsons also notes that in England the payment of a fare means that the passenger has a seat and not merely the right to transit.

Transit charges are judged in British cities by the minimum fare, the average fare and the distance given for various fares, especially the average distance for a penny (six cents) which, the professor says, is the fare the mass of the people pay. All the cities have a one-cent fare for short distances, from half to three-quarters of a mile, except Liverpool, but none of the private companies has a lower fare than two cents for the ordinary passenger traffic.

A comparison of Dublin, private ownership, and Glasgow, public ownership, shows, according to Professor Parsons, that the Dublin charges, within the rates for which substantially all the traffic moves, are from 50 to 100 per cent. above the Glasgow rates for the same distance. For the municipalities as a group the average distance for two cents is about 2.2 miles, against 1.6 miles for the companies as a group.

It is found also that the people like the graded plan of charging fares according to the distance traveled. While the commission was in Manchester, one of its members, discussing the graded fares, said to the chairman of one of Manchester's public service companies:

"In my city you can ride twelve miles for five cents."

"Yes," replied the chairman, "and you can ride twelve yards for it, too."

In addition to the regular reductions of fares, the tramway managements are required to run workmen's cars mornings and evenings at rates about half the ordinary allowed by law.

Profits Secured to Public.

Discussing the political results of municipal ownership in Great Britain, Professor Parsons says:

"1—It secures a measure of new standards and an educated public sentiment developed by municipal operation to the full publicity created by it in respect to all tramway costs and methods, the present companies at their best are managed with so much regard to the common interest that a casual observation might lead one to think there is nothing to be gained by further municipalization.

"2—It saves the municipality from the tramways. They believe that a well managed public tramway is better from the public standpoint than even the best private system, for several reasons:

"3—It secures to the public the profits taken from the public through their patronage of public service monopolies operating under franchises granted to the public.

"2—It tends to lower fares and makes distribution of the benefits of the service—a public plant is more apt to regard a surplus as a reason for reduction of charges.

"3—It aims primarily at service, while a company management must aim at dividends—it is benefit for all versus profit for a few as the fundamental motive and purpose.

"4—It gives the municipality direct and complete control of its streets in place of indirect and partial control.

"5—It eliminates the opposition of interest between the owners and the public which may at any time give rise to difficulty, dispute and obstruction of the public will and interest.

"6—It makes the managers the direct agents and employes of the people instead of the agents of a company employed and paid by private parties to work for the interest and other of those private parties—a city as well as an individual can control its servants and make them obey its will and wish better than the servants of some other parties.

"7—It adds a new field for civic activity and the development of civic energy and motives and the habits of thought and action on which good citizenship depends."

GERMAN LINER TURNS TURTLE

BREMERHAVEN, July 22.—The North German Lloyd steamship Kaiser Wilhelm II., while coaling here, suddenly listed.

The vessel turned into her hawses and boiler compartments through the open coal ports and the vessel careened and lay on her side on the bottom. When the tide was low her bow rested on a bank, but with the rising of the tide she slipped from that position and keeled over.

The Kaiser Wilhelm's full list of passengers for Tuesday's sailing were transferred to other liners.

To-day and to-morrow at the South End grounds will be the last games till the Doves get back from their second invasion of the Western circuit.

The locals windup the home season with the Pirates and as the Smoky City lads have already copped two of the only ones played in the series, it needs no suggesting that the remaining two contests are going to be high fivers, and they will put the Doves through a test which has not been in evidence this year.

The chances are very favorable for taking one if not two from the Pirates before they depart, as the twirlers will be Otis Dorner and Pat Flaherty, and they bear their usual stamp and team backs with these clever ones pitching anywhere they go properly, the Pirates ain't due to have a look in.

The boys know that President Dovey would rather down the Pirates more than any other team, as Barney Dreyfus is responsible for him being in major league baseball and the scores of the last two games, which were 2 to 0 and 3 to 1, tell pretty well that a few effort is being made to help out the genial Hub magnate.

The Pirates took a fall to Philly yesterday and enjoyed themselves, but they will have a different kind of entertainment when the Doves get after them with full war paint on to-day.

We may get a chance to see Vic Willis, the tall Maine wallaper, in the box. He is called the wizard now since he walloped the Giants.

CHICAGO, July 22.—Today's game will be the last one here between the White Sox and the Pilgrims.

Tomorrow will be an off day for the Bostons. They will spend it travelling home, where they open a long engagement with the Western teams Wednesday.

Detroit will be the first team to visit the Hub.

"Cy Young" Carded Today.

"Cy" Young is carded to face the home team today, and Manager McGuire is confident that the veteran will beat the World's champions. Frank Smith may pitch for Chicago.

The Pilgrims have won two out of three from the locals in the present series, and their chances of winning a third game, with "Cy" doing the flinging, looks very bright.

Hub Hart, a Boston boy, caught "Doc" White in the second game, and the Bostons failed to pilfer.

Bostons Got Two in First.

The Bostons scored two runs in their first inning in the second battle, and it looked as though the locals might lose their sixth straight. However, in their half, the White Sox got two runs off Prunelt in quick fashion, and with two men on Owen Archer, Criger signalled Manager McGuire that the young Boston twirler was off color, and Glaze was sent in. Rohe banged the first ball pitched, and two more Sox crossed the plate, which ended the scoring for the home talent.

The Bostons outbatted the Sox two to one in the second game, but the locals had their usual luck, and fielded well, which enabled them to win.

HOPALONG LOST ON ALLOWANCE

MARBLEHEAD, July 22.—Daniel E. Hallet's Hopalong, Boston entry, finished first in the second battle, and it brought home the bacon, from New York to Marblehead, held by the New Rochelle Yacht Club, yesterday afternoon, and this season out of sight. Hopalong, however, the Pearson, owned by T. H. Barclay, of New Bedford, won on time allowance.

Sam Hyde of Fall River has a two-year-old pacing filly out of Wyoming, 2:08¾, that has been quarter in :31½ seconds.

Grace Direct was sold when a three-year-old for $1,000, and since then has been raced against some of the greatest broodmares of the country, being the dam of Grace, 2:09¼, sold for $6,500; Northern Man, in this year's futurities, and two members of the 2:20 and $2,500, respectively.

And now they say that Clair Latus worked Narragansett Park in 2:07¾, before being shipped to Detroit. She is liable to smother the money winners in the classic M. and M. stake, Tuesday.

Gratian Bells has done great work since being rejected to Adams, and this season out of eight races he won six, and second money in the remainder.

Highball, Sadie Fogg and Clate Latus, in the order named, were sold for a total of $41,000, while Donoma Girl could not be purchased for $15,000. It is somewhat surprising if some of the 2:07 and 2:08 horses of the present season do not before the year's end.

M'GRAW AND JONES MAY STOP PLAYING IN 1908

CHICAGO, July 22.—If Fielder Jones and John McGraw carry out their declared intention of retiring from baseball next years two of the most prominent teams in the country will be without leaders and two of the greatest generals that ever played the game will have passed into history. Jones says he is sincere in his declaration to quit and every man on the world's championship team believes him when he says that this is to be his last season in baseball.

"There is no use of my quitting," said Jones. "I am not infatuated with the game by any means and that old argument that has been used many times when players are announce their intention of quitting—'He can't quit because of the love of the game'—will never do any service with me. I am not in love with the game and never was. I only did not feel a particle of regret about it."

With Jones and Isbell out of the team the White Sox would look very little like the champions they are now. Isbell is in no strong to his declaration that he will retire from the White Sox. He is negotiating for the purchase of the Wichita Club, but he has not bought it yet. He might buy it and let some one run it for him, it is said. The loss of Isbell to Comiskey would be almost as great as the loss of Jones. For eleven years "Hard Rocks" has paid wages to the tall second sacker and never once did he begrudge the amount that he paid, for he was always satisfied that he got the best that "Izzy" could give.

The retirement of McGraw will be entirely different from that of Jones. McGraw's star is fast going down, and his retirement now comes as the natural sequence of his failure of his policy this season. McGraw has been one of the great leaders in the game. His methods in winning have been considered a detriment to the games at times, but the record of Fielder Jones, who is a gentleman out and out, in every fan in the country would be sorry if he were to be regarded as the typical player and a sportsman.

M'GRATH'S RECORD THROW REJECTED

NEW YORK, July 22.—The mark made by Matt McGrath in the 16-pound hammer throw at Celtic Park Saturday will not stand as a record. He won the event with a fling of 173 feet 9 inches, but subsequent measurement showed the hammer handle to be one inch over the prescribed length of four feet. The record is 172 feet 11 inches, held by John J. Flanagan of the Irish American Athletic Club.

BILL SQUIRES WILL TRY WOOD-CHOPPING JOB NOW

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 22.—Back to the woods for Bill Squires, Boshter bill has severed his financial connections with Barney Reynolds, who held the power of attorney for Bookmaker Wren of Australia, the pugilist's backer. After now Bill is off for Ontario, Canada, to accept a position as a woodchopper with a lumber firm.

Squire's contract with Wren was unique for a fighter to have with his backer. The contract called for Wren to pay all of Squires's expenses and give him half of what he earned in the ring. Barney, tired of the job of protege, failed in securing Wren's consent, cancelled the contract.

There has not been the best of feeling between Reynolds and Squires for some time past. It is said that Squires refused to follow any instructions which Reynolds gave him. Friday, when he declared the orders of his second and waded in wide open to make it close up or hustle for the head of well-known.

Hereon fight promoters, who are after a match between Joe Gans and Battling Nelson, are figuring on having an added attraction, should the match be secured, between John L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrain. This would be the preliminary, but would undoubtedly attract almost as much attention as the main event.

Glidden Tourists Have Hard 140 Mile Run To-day

AUTOISTS ON WAY TO BALTIMORE

BY J. C. KERRISON.

BEDFORD SPRINGS, Pa., July 22.—The A. A. A. tour was resumed this morning, as the participants, all refreshed and greatly improved by their rest of yesterday, spent in the attractive spots, and made the best of the poor hotel accommodations. There was no excitement incident to the Sabbath. Every one was well content with staying around and taking things easily. It was truly a woeful day, and not a man but what needed a rest after two weeks of hard work, driving or riding a motor car up hill and down dale, through several States and countless towns and cities.

The tour has been most exacting on men and machines, and in a sense has been a case of elimination. Eleven hundred and sixty miles over good, bad and indifferent roads, have been ridden, and that too in all sorts and conditions of weather. It has been a task unprecedented in the motor annals of this country, and so hard has been the work and the schedule offered that out of the original sixty-three competing cars, twenty-three have dropped out by wreck from one cause or another. It must not, however, for a moment be thought that these twenty-three were placed hors de combat and unable to continue. They were unfortunate enough to break or strain some part of the duplicate which was not mentioned in the start, and they were therefore unable to replace the cause, and continue as competitors. The use of a single part not declared in the original inventory being cause for disqualification. Hence the drivers have preferred to withdraw entirely from the tour rather than continue as tourists or members of the down and out club.

Women Can't Enjoy Tours.

That tours of this character are not enthusiastic or enjoyable to women has been proven by the fact that of the twenty women who started from Cleveland with the tour, but six remain as members of the party, they being Mrs. Parker, who with her husband started as competitors, but who joined the touring section so they could all the better enjoy their honeymoon; Mrs. R. G. Johnson of New York, Mrs. Frank J. Fanney of Jersey City, Mrs. Phillip S. Flynn and Mrs. George H. Albaston who are riding in the Glidden trophy. None of these are thoroughly enthusiastic over the tour, and would gladly quit the conditions were less demanding and the party more sociable. They miss the stops for lunch, likewise the evening gatherings, which previous to this year made more enjoyable the tours and competitions for the Glidden trophy.

There was little if anything doing yesterday. The first excitement was brought about by the arrival of Willie Owen in the Pennsylvania roadbook. Owen had repaired damages on his car, which consisted of a fractured steering knuckle and not a broken axle, as first reported. Then late in the afternoon Sid Black pulled into the hotel grounds with the Logan, and seemed happy as a clam at high water. Both these cars will continue as tourists, and not of course having to chance in the Glidden trophy. Harmon Hower yesterday admitted that the present system of competition is not just exactly the right thing, and he believed that the system of classification as favored by the AMERICAN would be more interesting and satisfactory, making it possible to give each and every car a fair test, which is impossible to do under the present conditions.

Run of 140 Miles To-Day.

The length of the tour of to-day is 140 miles, the night's stopping place being Baltimore. There is no end of toll gates enroute, it being figured that each car will spend $2.85 in tolls before it reaches its destination. The first forty miles is like unto the greater portion of Saturday's tour, when Mrs. Parker, who had nothing else to do, than to take notes on the trip, counted no less than 1,861 water bars or chuck holes. Then from Foltz to Hagerstown there is a very fine piece of road, the tourists passing through the wild of Antietam and within all but hailing distance of famous Gettysburg. The day will surely be hard on springs and brakes, which fact will cause a very great attention since the start of the tour, and which will cause the cars to be more or less weakened or worn condition. It will not be at all surprising if some of the cars that score cars receive penalizations before the day's tour is completed.

The men of Buffalo who have a fine pedal advantage over their Pittsburg rivals will take things most easily just jogging along and take no chances. The several cars had no delays in checking out this morning, and instead of going right along on the course, they drew to one side of the road and made a thorough inspection of their machines. The other three starters in both contests are Glidden tour, R. S. Sullivan, Thomas Montgomery Halladay; Frank Brewer, H. H. Perkins, Packard; F. S. Day, Pierce; A. Rumpf, Pierce; E. S. Lee, Walter; A. Anderson, Bertlet; A. J. Scaffe, White; R. H. Tucker, Royal; Barnes Burman, Peerless; W. C. Strauh, Peerless; G. P. Moore, Welch; J. W. Moore, Premier; R. M. Green, Reo; H. V. Tieston, Stoddard Dayton; Ed. Nobel, Hupmobile. Hower is the only, G. S. Smith, Premier; H. R. Sheridan, White.

NORTH TO PLAY WEST END TEAM

What promises to be a very interesting baseball game has just been arranged between the West End House and the North End Union. The game will be played at the National League grounds on Saturday, August 10. There is intense local rivalry between the teams, as each carries the banking of the fans of its respective section of the city. It is expected that at least 1,500 people will witness the contest.

PIRATES MAY GET 'YOUNG CY'

President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburg club is expected in town to-day, and a trade will probably be effected by the Boston club whereby Pitcher "Young Cy" Young will go to the Pirates in exchange for a crack catcher or outfielder, or both. Young has been doing poor work here this season his record being five won and sixteen lost.

DETROITS GOT COBB FOR $700

One of the best ball players in the country was secured for $700. The player in question is no other than Tyrus Cobb.

Bill Armour claims credit for discovering Cobb and this is how it came about, according to the Toledo News-Bee, which got the story from the owner of the Toledo team.

The Detroit club trained in Augusta in the Spring of 1906 and Bill Armour saw Cobb work with the South Atlantic team. The Toledo manager kept the youngster in mind, and when Detroit suffered from accidents he at once thought of Cobb.

Bill started the police on Cobb, and was told $1,000. Secretary Navin of the Detroit club didn't want Cobb, and kicked about buying him. Bill, however, thought he would make a great player, and on his own hook offered $500.

This offer was finally accepted, and then Armour wired that he would offer $200 more if Cobb was allowed to join the Tigers at once. This was also agreed to, and $700 was sent on. He won the first game with his pitch, and has been getting better every day since.

RACE AT REVERE TO-NIGHT FOR BIKE CHAMP

The thirty-mile championship motor paced race at the Revere track, which was suddenly stopped Saturday night, will take place to-night and the three riders, Walthour, Moran and MacLean, are in top form to tear the pace out from start to finish.

At the conclusion of the race the BOSTON AMERICAN Diamond Medal will be presented to the winner and he will be proclaimed the champion of America in the paced game.

The calibre of the men competing is enough to draw the crowd as they represent the best in the country to-day and their appearance on the track Saturday night showed that they were in superb racing form for a great battle.

It will be Washburn's last appearance in the North, as he leaves the Hub immediately after the race and will not return this season. His popularity as a great rider is world wide and many will go to the track to cheer the modest-headed speed king on to victory.

Between Moran and MacLean it is a blood duel, as there is as much feeling with them over the result of their showing as the importance of winning the medal.

There will be a ten-mile open amateur race also on the card and all the local riders will be in the saddle.

CONNOLLY IS NOT AFRAID OF GAINES' WALLOP

Principal Bouts Carded This Week

Willie Riley vs. Joe Doherty, New Haven.
Jim Dunn vs. Phil Dolan, O.

TUESDAY.

Jerry Gaines vs. Harley Connelly, Chelsea.
Frank Mantell vs. Tommy Murphy, Utah.

WEDNESDAY.

Cyclone Thompson vs. K. Taro, Glenwood.

THURSDAY.

Tommy Murphy vs. Bert Keyes, Brooklyn.

More excitement prevails around town over the match between Jerry Gaines, the Maynard champion, and Harley Connelly of Portland than any like affair that has been booked for this section in many months. The winning streak that the Cambridge man now possesses makes him a tough opponent for any one, for he goes like a flash when he gets started. Under the careful handling of Johnny McGann of Roxbury he has got into splendid condition and he is confident that he will beat Connelly.

Hartley got into town last night and immediately went to South Boston, where he will remain with relatives while here. He says that Gaines's terrific punch does not worry him, and he will make the battle all the way through.

The other matches are of the star kind and some fine sport will be in evidence.

Members who desire to see the secretary to-day can find him at room 915, Winthrop Building, 7 Water street, this city. He will be there until 9 p. m. this evening to receive dues and applications.

CANADA AND FOREIGN COUNTRIES PAYABLE REGULAR RATES.

AT MERCY OF DISHONEST 'PHONE TRUST--DR. CRANE

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP SOLUTION OF PROBLEM, DECLARES PEOPLE'S TEMPLE PASTOR.

At the People's Temple service last evening the Rev. Charles A. Crane, in commenting on the telephone situation, declared the public is at the mercy of dishonest men, speaking as follows:

"A customer has some chance at self-protection when trading on credit with the grocer, for his passbook should show all purchases. With the customer of the Telephone company it is different. It can charge me just what it may choose in extra calls and I have no redress which is at all workable. This might be endurable if the company were honest, but the revelations before the Highway Commissioners convince us that the company is committed to practices confessedly dishonest.

"If their testimony may be believed, it has hired bogus workmen who do not work for the company and who are carried on pay rolls through the influence of politicians.

"WE common people, who pay the highest 'phone rates in the United States, pay these bills. If our money can be used for such dishonest purposes, how are we to be persuaded that the bills we get from the company are at all honest?

"Can we expect scrupulous honesty when we are assessed through a system with no workable checks, after we find that money has been spent with unscrupulous dishonest agents in launching law-makers and politicians alike?

"It is bad enough to have one's purse open where an honest man can help himself at his pleasure; it is immeasurably worse to have it at the bills to suit the fancy of a company confessedly dishonest.

"A man known by his employers to be a thief and an embezzler is at work in one of the greatest clothing stores in Boston. Such a character must be a necessity to that store.

"Are the laborers and lobbying politicians, a large force of lawyers and many others employed to influence legislation—are all these necessary to the carrying on of the telephone system in Boston?

"The present condition of the 'phone business is the strongest argument we have ever heard for public ownership. No political party could sink lower in administering that business than the present company has fallen.

"To protect this company from the light of public gaze is almost if not altogether criminal, and it does appear that this is the effort of the Highway Commission. Why should the lights be turned down? Is a cabinet or a dark room necessary to make the truth known?

"We people who pay the bills are the political circus, very much want to know just who the politicians are whose forefeet are in this trough, for as victims are they who pay for the trough, the swill, the 'pull' and the whole show."

REV. CHARLES A. CRANE.

SHOOTS DOWN HIS BROTHER, WIFE PRESENT

Cold-Blooded Slayer Refuses to Explain His Act to Police.

VICTIM HAD NO ENEMIES

Special to the Boston American.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 22.—Michael Keaveny, proprietor of a saloon at No. 176 North Main street, yesterday deliberately shot and killed his brother, Cornelius Keaveny, in the latter's home at No. 53 Benedict street, Arlington, during to-day to give any explanation for his act.

"It's my temper. I've done it and here is my gun," he said yesterday when the police took charge of the prisoner easily, but since then he has remained silent.

Cold-Blooded Murder.

The murder was one of the most cold-blooded that has ever taken place in this city. Cornelius Keaveny was sitting in the kitchen of his home reading a newspaper, when Michael walked in on him. Cornelius looked up with a smile on his face and said: "Hello, Mike."

Michael did not reply, but pulled a revolver from his hip pocket and fired a bullet into his brother's abdomen.

The police and a patrol from the Rev. Father Reardon, and a doctor were summoned by neighbors, and entered the house before Keaveny died.

The shooting was witnessed by his wife, who to-day is on the verge of nervous collapse.

Victim Had Good Habits.

Cornelius Keaveny, the victim of the shooting, had been a resident of Arlington about twelve years. He was a pressman at the plant of the Narragansett Brewery. He was widely known as a man of good habits and never had trouble with any one.

Besides two brothers, Michael and John, the dead man had a sister in Ireland. He was fifty-three years old, while his brother Michael is forty-eight. Mr. Keaveny has a sister, Kate Green, who lives in this city. Cornelius was a member of Division 18 of the Hibernians. He had no children. Michael is unmarried.

The stiletto was condemned.

DOG IN CHURCH OF PRESIDENT

OYSTER BAY, July 22.—Dr. Washburn of Christ Church was exhausting upon a most interesting theological question yesterday when a strange dog, evidently looking for its master, strayed into the church, climbing the secret service men, and passed down the aisle.

Before the section could head off the dog it ran up the aisle and passed the pew occupied by President Roosevelt and his family. The President paid no attention to the incident.

At length the antics of the stray caused Dr. Washburn to pause in his sermon and remark that he had previously cautioned persons about allowing dogs to enter the church. The owner of the animal was not in the congregation, and so it was permitted to take its time in leaving the building.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, JULY 22, 1907

Let Us Jog Your Memory, Mr. Powers

Just Think It Over and See If You Can't Recall Some of John H. Lee's "Services"

At the hearing before the Highway Commission on the petition of the Boston Post to reduce the telephone rates it was disclosed that the Telephone Company not only carried on its payrolls men who rendered it only political service, but also that it made campaign contributions and paid salaries to such men as John H. Lee of Brighton.

This is interesting to those who didn't before believe that the money from the excessive rates which they have been paying for their telephone service was being squandered in such ways as these.

But it is not news to the readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN.

For a long time the AMERICAN has been telling the public that there was more graft and waste in the public service corporations than in the city governments.

For a long time the AMERICAN has been telling the public that the political loafer was made by, and the bribe-giver came from, the public service corporations.

When these corporations have argued that the public cannot own and manage them successfully because the city governments are corrupt, the AMERICAN has answered that most of the corruption of the city governments came from the baleful activities of THESE VERY CORPORATIONS.

Why was John H. Lee on the payroll of the Telephone Company?

What are his relations with the Boston Elevated?

Does he perform legal services for them?

Do Guy Currier, Captain Davis, Frank Dickerman and Jake Wardwell perform legal services for these corporations?

If they want a legal opinion are these the men they would send to the books to search for the law?

Is it because Currier is profoundly learned in the law that Speaker Cole consults him concerning his committee appointments? Is it because they believe he knows the law from Bracton to the last issue of the Banker and Tradesman that members of the House consult Currier when they want Cole to give them good committee places?

Currier and Lee are Democrats. Dickerman and Wardwell are Republicans. The careers of these men, the way they earn their living, the way they operate, are good illustrations of the degradation of both the Republican and Democratic parties.

The confession that Lee is on the payroll of the Telephone Company and Mr. Samuel L. Powers's statement that he did not know just what Lee's services were, call to mind a political incident which is a year beyond the statute of limitations, but is still an interesting example of what Mr. Lee's services are.

Mr. Lee is boss of Ward 25. He has been a boss for years. He has been chairman of the Board of Aldermen and president of the City Committee and is one of the "leaders of the city Democracy."

In 1900 Mr. Samuel L. Powers, then, as now, counsel for the Telephone Company, was a candidate for Congress. In the national Legislature the company wanted a representative. At that time Mr. Powers was their man.

His congressional district was considered close. It was desirable that the Democrats should nominate some dummy who could not command the confidence of the voters, and would so insure Mr. Powers's election.

Some rash gentlemen who didn't know that these "leaders" considered the proper function of the Democratic party to be to help the Republican party proposed to nominate a man of standing who could make a real contest against Mr. Powers.

Lee, earning his pay, gave the nomination to a man named Baker, who had no possible chance of election.

Of course, Mr. Powers doesn't know what Mr. Lee's services are. Why should he? It would be highly improper.

The corporations wanted Fitzgerald nominated for Mayor. Lee brought to Fitzgerald, accordingly, Nawn, Doyle and others who turned the balance in Fitzgerald's favor.

The State House and the City Hall have known Mr. Lee's activities.

Is he a Democrat or is he a Republican or IS THERE ANY DIFFERENCE?

It Does Make a Difference—A BIG ONE

Federal Government Touch Corporations?—NO. Touch and Control Their Workmen?—YES

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

It has been suggested that the national Government can control corporations within States by using the "post roads" idea as a pretext. The theory is this—street car lines, railroads, subways, etc., carry United States mails. They must carry them if requested to do so.

Wherever the United States mail is carried, that is a "post road," and the Government of the United States has full power on post roads.

Consequently, if railroads behave badly the Government can say: "Hello, here is a post road misbehaving itself; we must look after it."

We haven't anything in particular to say about this ingenious little argument. In our opinion, if the people want to control their railroads, or street car lines, or anything else that THEY HAVE CREATED, they have a right to do so, and they ought to do so, without looking for any pretext.

But we notice with amusement the queer attitude of some corporation newspapers toward this suggestion of Federal control within State lines.

Our little friend, the New York Sun, for instance, is terribly excited about this suggestion of national interference with a corporation inside of the State. It cannot bear the thought that the Government should interfere in so sacred an affair as the robbery of the people by a busy railroad corporation that needs the money.

But how was it back in the days of Altgeld, when the railroads WANTED the Federal Government to come in and get them out of a row? What was the attitude of the Sun, of other corporation newspapers and of the corporations themselves toward government interference, "on the post road pretext," when the railroads wanted national troops to put their men back to work?

We seem to remember that the pretext for sending troops to Chicago despite the objection of the Governor of Illinois was "Protection of the mails, of the post roads."

The Sun and all its owners applauded the idea that the State might interfere to help the railroads in a fight, and the postoffice was considered a good enough pretext then.

Of course it makes a great difference whether the State steps in to keep workingmen from getting more money or whether it steps in to prevent railroads from robbing the people unmercifully.

It is all right to interfere when the railroads WANT the Government, but it is all wrong when they don't want it.

That is the idea of the corporations and of the corporation newspapers. But it isn't quite the idea of the people at large, and the corporations are going to find that out.

E. Z. MARK PAYS A REWARD

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

1. STRANGER—Mr. Mark, as I was passing your house I picked up this pass book bearing the name of Mrs. E. Z. Mark. Permit me to return it to you.

E. Z. MARK—Thank you, sir. That's a good joke on my wife. She's always bragging about how careful she is in money matters.

2. E. Z. MARK—What's this? I didn't know that Mary had an account at the Plumbers' National Bank. Over a thousand dollars to her credit, too. This IS a surprise! Allow me to offer you a trifling reward for your trouble.

STRANGER—Thank you, Mr. Mark. I didn't expect this, but I shall not insult you by refusing it.

3. E. Z. MARK—Well, Mary, you are a sly one, aren't you? I had no idea you had an account at the Plumbers' National Bank. I never should have found it out, either, if you hadn't lost your pass book.

MRS MARK—What are you talking about, E. Z.? Let me see that book.

4. MRS MARK—Just as I thought, this book is a fake. I never even heard of that bank. All my money is at the same bank where you keep yours, when you do keep it. I presume you paid some swindler a handsome reward for returning this, did you not?

E. Z. MARK—Stung again!

She Says the Summer Vacation Season Is the Proper Time to Find Out Human Weaknesses

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal Examiner

THE follies and weaknesses of women are usually more observable in Summer than in Winter. The outdoor existence, the close association of cottage and hotel life, reveals the texture of mind as well as of complexion to interested observers, who might meet these same fair ones season after season at ballroom, theatre party and dinner table and never really know them as they are.

The pretty woman who is growing a little too stout tells you in the Winter how she regrets the fact, and how hopeless she is struggling against it.

"Of course," she says, "when I go out to dine I make an exception, but day after day I fairly starve myself, and I follow every known system of calisthenics, yet I steadily increase in weight. I suppose it is an inheritance, and I must submit to it."

You listen and feel sorry for her, and for your own pet theory that a woman's weight is wholly a matter of will power, and you decide there must be exceptions to all rules.

Self-Indulgence

BUT live next door to your friend for two Summer months, or stop at the same hotel, and you will return to your old theory more firmly than ever.

Her little story of self-denial and physical exercise was merely a Winter's tale. She had probably fasted two days and exercised three. During the Summer you see her as she is—self-indulgent and indolent.

She loves every article of food which produces fat, and she dislikes exercise. You tell her the sea baths will reduce her flesh, and she is so delighted to hear it; but she does not join you on the beach because, she explains afterward, it is such a nuisance to dress one's self and dry the hair, and that it hardly pays for the exertion and time employed.

She thinks the wheel is better for bantering purposes, anyway; but when you invite her to take a spin with you she says the day is too hot and the roads too rough, and her wheel is out of order.

So you leave her lying in a hammock eating chocolate creams, and smiling amiably over her double chin at you.

Shattered Illusions

THE earnest church woman and charity fair devotee whom you have always thought such a good woman, and wished you could be half as worthy, shows some surprising qualities, too, before the Summer ends.

She quarrels with everybody in the progressive whist circle over the "rules," and she breaks up the tennis and golf clubs with her criticisms and bickerings. She is in constant trouble with her domestics, and bores you to death's verge with a relation of her trials in this line.

The woman who monopolizes the best chair and hammock in the hotel or boarding house and who wants to be served before any one else at the table shows a side of her character which a society acquaintance of several years' duration never before revealed to you.

And then there is the girl with the form of a Venus, whose "lines" disappear by some magical process when she is in the briny deep, but return when she is clothed for promenade or ball.

Pleasant Surprises, Too

OF course, too, there are happy surprises as well as unhappy disillusionments to be had in the close Summer life association.

People whom we have thought cold and indifferent prove to be tender and kind and ever thoughtful.

The silent and dull man you know casually in town turns out to be a brilliant wit and delightful companion! and the woman you thought only a butterfly of fashion reveals a heart of gold.

It would be an excellent plan for every man and woman contemplating marriage to spend an ante-nuptial honeymoon in the Summer first and learn each other's true natures.

Keeping Cool!

By James J. Montague

WHEN the sun of July sizzles out of the sky—
And really and truly it's not
Overstating the fact or at all inexact
To say that the weather is hot—
I would barter my soul just to think of the Pole,
But the sole recollections that lurk in
My heat-wearied brain take me 'way back again
To a foundry I once used to work in.

I COULD keep cool, I know, if I thought of the snow
That falls eight feet deep in Nebraska,
Or the peevish wolf's bark when the Winter sweeps dark
Across the north shore of Alaska.
But, however I try to recall these things, I
Discover my memory's strayed
To a far distant day that I spent in Bombay
At 206 in the shade.

WHEN my thoughts I would fix on the murmuring cricks
Where the reeds grow abundant and lush,
Full swiftly I find that my wandering mind
Is portraying a Dudley Street crush.
I am glad that as yet I've not happened to get
In those fiery regions called nether;
If I'd been down that way, I am certain that they Would be all I could think of this weather.

Why and Wherefore

Playing Cards

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Sir—Will you kindly tell me through your "Why and Wherefore" column when and by whom playing cards were invented? ALBERT ALTIANESE.

[The origin of playing cards is unknown. The invention has been attributed to the Romans, to the Chinese, to the Arabs and also to the French. The invention in all probability belongs to the Chinese. Playing cards have been known in Europe since 1278.]

Origin of the Census

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I have heard it said that the idea of a census originated in Great Britain, and that it was in that country that the first census known to history was taken. Is this so? R. A. C.

[You have been misinformed. The idea of the census is almost as old as history itself. King Amasis of Egypt took a census of his people 500 years before Christ. The Athenian Solon established a census for the purpose of facilitating taxation. We learn that about 443 B. C. Servius Tullus took a census of Rome. During the chaos of the Dark Ages the census dropped into oblivion, but was revived again about the beginning of the eighteenth century.]

Air of "Star-Spangled Banner"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Will you please inform me through your "Why and Wherefore" column who composed the air of the "Star-Spangled Banner," and also if there is any truth in the statement I have seen that the tune was originally composed by one Dibdin, an Englishman, as a setting to Dryden's "Ode to America"? E. P. WILLIAMS.

[The "Star-Spangled Banner" was by the positive orders of Key, its author, sung to the air of "Anacreon in Heaven." There is not much room for doubting that the air was composed by Charles Dibdin, the English song writer.]

The Political 'Phone

By Morton Birge

I LOVE to use the telephone and help the world along.
I used to think the charges high, iniquitous and wrong;
But now I know each time I 'phone and pay twice what it's worth
I'm furnishing finance for some poor politician's berth.

FOR politicians have to live, but do not have to toil.
A snap in the construction graft is lawful party spoil.
To help the padded payroll out, to get the "pot" his wage
I pay an extra tariff for the 'phone that I engage.

NOW, since I understand the way that telephones are run,
I do not mind the awful cost, but, with the morning sun,
I telephone and telephone and telephone all day
And chip my money cheerfully to politicians' pay.
